When the Crew Mutinies.
NRA Strike Problem.
Mrs. Bear, Fortunate Mother.
Good News for Gold Men.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

WHEN MUTINEERS seize a ship, throw the officers overboard, and start for themselves, they remember too late that navigation is necessary, and often would wish their officers alive again.

So, in Cuba, you read that the gallant "top sergeants" and others of lesser rank, that have seized the government, feel the need of more experienced hands.

OLDER ARMY officers have been asked to come back, and it is even suggested that De Cespedes, deposed president Number Two, may be invited to take charge again.

In the old fable, the feet that rebelled against the head and stomach, because the latter had too easy a time, discovered that feet need guidance.

GEN. JOHNSON, of NRA, watches closely the working of the coal miners' code, for good reasons. Of all industries, coal has been most seriously and persistently disturbed by strikes and lockouts.

If NRA can make that code work, others will work.

GROVER WHALEN, who runs New York NRA, with a smile that never dies, has settled two garment workers' strikes, which is as near to performing a miracle as he can ever expect to come.

Garment making is a seasonal trade, with months of idleness each year, plenty of leisure for workers, usually earnest and excitable men and women, to think up new plans for "throwing off their chains" and getting better pay.

AMERICAN LABOR unions are urged to join and cooperate with the international labor unions of the world.

American labor leaders have hitherto preferred to go it alone, and it is to be hoped they will continue that policy, if, in the end it turns out that NRA is to make organized labor practical dictator of industry and commerce in the United States with the "collective bargaining" clause meaning ultimately "no open shop."

Government NRA authorities may easily control or coerce individual industrialists, with much at stake, and public condemnation to fear. They can hardly control, against their will, millions of workers, assured by fervent orators that they have "nothing to lose but their chains."

WHAT DO the bears do, how do they keep alive, how much or little do they breed while sleeping through the winter?

Scientists in Yellowstone Park will try to answer.

The female bears, luckiest of mammal mothers, give birth to their young during the hibernating period presumably while unconscious, a sort of natural "twilight sleep."

It is an easy birth, a mother bear weighing 1,000 pounds produces a cub weighing only a few ounces.

Do the young bears, less than a year old, nurse while they hibernate? How do the bears manage all that?

BUDDHIST priests in Thibet are said to practice hibernation to a limited extent and perform other marvels of endurance. See "Magic and Mystery in Thibet," by Alexandria David Neel.

It is alleged the Thibetan priests cause their bodies to produce heat, by some esoteric mental process. In the dead of winter, at night, by the edge of a frozen lake or river, in competition, the yogis, stark naked, sit on the ground while cotton cloths dipped in cold water through a hole in the ice, are wrapped around them.

When the cloth is dried, by the body's heat, it is taken off and another wet applied. One yogi is said to have supplied enough heat to dry 40 such ice cold cloths and was warm at the end.

But perhaps it is not so.

THIS GOVERNMENT recognizes the dollar slump, officially, by fixing the price of gold at $29.62 in our money.

The idea is to let American gold producers get for their metal the "world price" in dollars, less the cost of handling, exporting, etc. Good news for the gold mine men.

NOT CONTENT with driving out Prof. Einstein, who did so much for the glory of German science, certain Hitler followers seem inclined to "honor" their swastika emblem by bringing about Prof. Einstein's death.

Following an alleged cash reward for Einstein's murder, Belgian police placed a guard around his suburban house. Now it is reported "Nazis have been concentrating near the Einstein villa" and Einstein will flee from Belgium, going to South America on a friend's yacht.

Queer way to obtain honor, by murdering one of the world's greatest scientists.

COAL CODE REVOLT PERILS NRA

JOHNSON SET TO SWING 'CLUB' ON OPERATORS

Agrees to Modify Charter After Protests

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—The iron hand of the federal government was held over bituminous coal operators today as National Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson sought to persuade the industry to accept a code of fair competition.

After a tense few hours, during which it appeared the whole campaign of the NRA might fail, there appeared a possibility of winning reluctant consent of most of the operators.

Johnson was ready to revise and modify the code to meet some of the objections of operators. But at the same time he was preparing to ask President Roosevelt to summarily impose a code on the industry.

GEORGE HAVIDICH

AIDES SAY FORD WILL NOT SIGN

DETROIT, Sept. 9.—(AP.)—On the eve of Henry Ford's return to his office from a three weeks' vacation, there were strong indications today that the Ford Motor Company policy on the NRA would be that signing of a code is unimportant if there is compliance with its terms.

Ford, represented here as the man who is "dealing with the matter," was getting ready to leave his Huron Mountain camp near Big Bay, Mich., but it was doubtful if his return would bring any change in the situation.

While the motor manufacturer might popularly be pictured as returning to the "front lines" in a controversy with administrators of the National Recovery Act, the Ford Company attitude is represented as anything but that.

Ford executives who will not permit their names to be used interpret the Recovery Act as not compelling an industry to sign a code, so long as there are no violations of its terms — and the Ford Company considers it is going the national automobile code one better in provisions for its workers.

BOMB PLOT LAID TO 'POLITICIANS'

George Havidich, former Pittsburgher, held in Philadelphia in connection with a demand upon Cardinal Dougherty for $50,000 under threat of bombing, today faced deportation to Jugoslavia.

Arrested while prowling around the grounds of Cardinal Dougherty, he told police:

"The politicians sent me to Philadelphia to get it."

Havidich was identified here yesterday as having escaped from the City Home and Hospital at Mayview on July 31.

Philadelphia police said he had been confined on two occasions to the Philadelphia Hospital for Mental Diseases under the name of Haniethich.

Capt. Koenig won great acclaim for outwitting the Allied naval commanders in evading the blockade of German ports. He sailed on to arrive at Baltimore July 10, 1916, less than a year before the United States entered the war.

New Uprising Threatened in Cuba

MAN THROWS GIRL OUT OF TAXI

Left on Bridge When She Spurns His Advances

Hurled from a speeding automobile, Catherine Williams, 36, of 6376 Aurelia street, was in St. Francis Hospital today with undetermined injuries.

The girl told police she had been thrown from the machine as it crossed the Thirtieth Street Bridge by her escort when he made advances which she rebuffed.

She was found semi-conscious on the bridge by Charles Hough, of 1015 Sarah street, who took her to the hospital.

Homicide detectives, investigating, said the girl told them she had met the man at Penn and Highland avenues at 11:30 last night. They hailed a passing taxicab, rode to the South Side and then started to the North Side via the Thirty-first Street Bridge.

When the Williams woman refused to comply with his demands, she told police, he started beating her and then tossed her from the machine.

The fall paralyzed her lower limbs, hospital authorities said, and she suffered a probable back injury.

Belle of Town Shot Riding With Rich Farmer's Son

BEDFORD, Pa., Sept. 9.—Pretty Emma Snyder, 15, the belle of Hopewell, is dead today from a bullet wound, which ended her romance with the scion of one of the county's foremost families. Her suitor's father, Marshall Steele, 65, prominent farmer, is held in County Jail, pending an investigation.

According to Sheriff D. E. Calhoun, the bullet which snuffed out the life of the girl, was fired from ambush near the Steele home, as Miss Snyder and William Steele, 18, sped along the road in young Steele's coupe automobile about 10 o'clock last night.

A bullet fired from a high-powered rifle, according to Sheriff Calhoun, was taken from the girl's head during a postmortem made in an Everett mortuary early today.

The shooting, police said, occurred along the road between Wells' Tannery and Cipher Beach, in the vicinity of the Steele home shortly before 10 o'clock last night. Sheriff Calhoun said he believed the elder Steele lay in a ditch along the road side and fired.

Opposition to the romance between the young couple, police said, prompted the shooting.

Police said the girl was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Snyder, of Hopewell.

Robie was permitted to walk about, according to hospital authorities. This morning he closed the door to his private room and was seen by nurses just as, they say, he leaped to the pavement of the hospital court.

A brother of the patient, George R. Robie, of Aspinwall, was notified of the accident.

6 NAVY PLANES BREAK RECORD

International News Service.

COCO SOLO NAVAL AIR BASE, Canal Zone, Sept. 9.—New holders of the world's record for nonstop formation flying, officers and crews of six American naval seaplanes rested today after a flight from Norfolk, Va., and declined to reveal their immediate plans.

They would not comment on rumors they would proceed on to the California Coast and perhaps even to Hawaii in search of new laurels and in a new test of the fighting planes' stamina.

The planes, under the command of Lieut. Commander D. M. Carpenter, arrived here at 6:22 last night, 24 hours and 52 minutes after leaving Norfolk on a hop shrouded in secrecy.

Their record was placed at 1,788 nautical miles of non-stop flying in formation, shattering the previous mark of 1,618 nautical miles, held by Gen. Italo Balbo, of Italy, and the fleet he piloted over the South Atlantic in 1931.

North Side Youth Missing for Week

The Buyers' Crusade

THE GREAT buy now movement is in full swing. From one end of the country to the other, in cities and hamlets, back on the farms, up in the hills, along the coasts, in the most out of the way places, the call has been heard to make this month of September memorable as the starting point for the MARCH OF THE BUYERS.

It is a MARCH OF SUPPORT to our already reviving trade—a MARCH OF REINFORCEMENT to our patriotic and enlightened President, who has given his countrymen such a strong clear lead to self-rescue and recovery from the trade depression that has weighed them down.

How wonderful it is—a great concerted movement of a mighty people responding to the call of duty with willing mind and the perfect heart to serve!

Have you ever stopped to think how entirely and exclusively the strength of the United States, its defensive strength, its recuperative power, lie in the body of its citizenship,—in the noble company of sober, moral, diligent, thoughtful men and women who make up our great population?

IT IS in the people as a whole that the patience, judgment and vigor of America have their roots.

The American people made America! And it is the PEOPLE who alone can save it in a period of stress or emergency.

Not the ambitious leader. Not the noisy politician. Not the vain celebrity of the moment who thrusts himself clamorously upon public notice. These self-centered figures have no significance at all in a time of crisis, except only as they may succeed in catching and interpreting the deep undertones of the thought and lives of the people.

The foundations of constitutional democracy were not laid by Cromwell, as is sometimes said, but by the plain russet-coated tradesmen and artisans who made up his armies. They fought and prayed with equal fervor and by diligence, discipline and sobriety, became invincible.

It was the embattled farmer of Lexington who "fired the shot heard 'round the world;" and in a later period of our history, it was again the plain people who came to the country's rescue, and saved the Union itself from destruction.

How they rallied to Lincoln's support; they knew what they fought for and they loved what they knew. Do you remember the plain and homely note of cheer they sent to the President—"We are coming, Father Abraham, three hundred thousand strong!"

It is the plain people—you all and us—to whom the country looks now to put this national recovery effort over.

We can do it! And only we can do it!

DO YOU realize that eighty per cent of the buying power in the United States is made up of the people whose annual income is less than eighteen hundred dollars?

The rich man, the big buyer, does not amount to so much in the light of this great fact,—does he? He has his place and his usefulness, but he does not compare, in value to the country, with the plain and simple American who outnumbers him, outworks him and outmeasures him as a contributor and source of strength to the nation's well-being.

Come then, fellow Americans—sober fathers, thrifty mothers, sturdy sons, diligent daughters—let us put this great power to work—this power, that we possess by virtue of our great number, to absorb the output and reward the labor of our industrious countrymen.

Let us use and proudly own and promptly and liberally buy the work of their brains and hands.

It will do us good. It will do them good. It will promote and make secure the happiness and prosperity of all.

IT IS A WORK FOR COUNTRY!

DEFI ISSUED BY ARMY OFFICERS

American Consulate Invaded by Army Officer

HAVANA, Sept. 9.—(AP.)—Rumblings of a possible coup against a 4-day-old Cuban junta, itself the product of revolt, grew today as 200 army officers were held virtual prisoners in the National Hotel.

Meanwhile, the residence of American Consul Knox Alexander at Cienfuegos was searched by 30 armed revolutionaries. They did no damage to the residence and uttered no threats against the occupants.

The captive army officers, leaders under the deposed De Cespedes regime, had convened to consider their course when several companies of heavily-armed soldiers swooped down on the hotel and, with machine guns, surrounded it.

Fulgencio Batista, one-time sergeant, who now is commander of the army, served the officers with an ultimatum that they return to their posts, from which they were evicted Monday when Batista led a revolt and established a commission form of government.

DEMANDS DEFIED

Last night, when the guard about the hotel was increased, they emphatically answered "no" to the demands. One of them said:

"We do not recognize this government. Let the commissioners get out."

The officers freely said they

3 ARMY PLANES FALL, MEN SAFE

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—(AP.)—The perils of the skyways hold hardly a more nightmarish predicament than to be lost in a fog a mile or so above New York's canyons and skyscrapers, with one's gasoline giving out.

That's what happened last night to a squadron of seven Army planes. Yet today every man in the squadron was safe, although three of the planes were smashed to bits.

Six men leaped from three planes and floated gently down in parachutes. Four other planes fought their way to safety but scattered landings, three at New York area airports, one at Somerville, N. J.

The planes, flying back from Chicago, ran into impenetrable fog over the New York area.

There was nothing then to do but say "every man for himself." They scattered, flying by instrument almost entirely.

ANDERSON, BAR QUIZ AIDE, DENIES PADDING EXPENSES

DEPLORES WAY RIORDAN AIRED ACCUSATION

TriedWithoutCourtesy Of Knowing Charge; Attorney Says

Attorney Donald C. Anderson, secretary of the Allegheny County Bar Association committee investigating "ambulance chasers," today deplored that charges of padding expense accounts had been aired without giving him an opportunity to explain.

Leo A. Riordan, chief county investigator, recently made the charges before the County Commissioners. An audit of the committee's accounts is now under way. Anderson, in a statement, declared his ability to answer ultimately all charges against him.

ANDERSON REPLIES

The statement follows:

"At a meeting of the County Commissioners on Tuesday of this week Mr. Leo A. Riordan in a report to the Commissioners made grave charges against me in my capacity as secretary of the Allegheny County Bar Association Committee to investigate professional conduct of members of the bar.

"These charges were based upon an ex parte investigation by Mr. Riordan and before any examination of my accounts by an impartial accountant or by anyone else. No mention was made in Mr. Riordan's charge of the fact that the county is at present seven months in arrears on the payment of committee expenses, or of the fact that the county has at no time averaged less than three months in arrears, or that committee members, including myself, have as a result of these delays been forced to advance their private funds to meet committee expenses.

"No mention was made in Mr. Riordan's report of the fact that at the present time I have not been repaid by the county for cash advanced and expended.

"Nor is it known to you or the general public that neither the committee nor I were able to secure a copy of Mr. Riordan's charges until yesterday noon, although copies were available for the newspapers before the meeting of the Commissioners on Tuesday, nor is it known that utterly no notice was received by me or by any members of the committee that charges of this character were to be filed and no opportunity was afforded to discuss, explain or reply to them.

"The Bar Association of Allegheny County, two of its committees, the courts of Allegheny County as well as myself were arraigned, tried and found guilty without so much as the courtesy of a notice of our indictment or an opportunity to be heard.

"I think you will agree with me that the answer never overtakes the charge publicly made, and to that extent I have suffered irreparable damage, in spite of my ability to answer ultimately the malicious and libelous charges made against me. Suits against the offending parties for libel and against the county for moneys owing me will clear me of the charges on the record, but will not be accorded the same publicity as the charges. I, therefore, invoke the ethics of your profession to protect my name by giving my denial the same publicity the charges themselves received.

COAL CODE SNAG PERILS NRA

operators of the great Appalachian field.

Bituminous operators had until 6 p. m. today to formally object to the NRA's drastic code, which shortens working hours in the mines, provides virtual compulsory arbitration of labor disputes and paves the way for price and production control.

The hearing scheduled for Monday may be postponed because of Johnson's eagerness to win the consent of operators to the code. He won similar consent from the oil magnates after a long and bitter quarrel.

Johnson said:

"I'll get an agreed code if I can. I think I can get it. This thing has not busted up—it is going along."

Modification of the code probably will be made, Johnson said. The changes are expected to deal principally with provisions for control of labor situations.

OBJECTIONS PLANNED

The "four horsemen" of the Appalachian field—J. D. A. Morrow, R. E. Taggart, Charles O'Neill and James Francis—were considering formal objections to the code. Western operators met under the leadership of George Harrington, of Chicago, to consider objections, while the United Mine Workers' policy committee was also studying the code.

The "four horsemen" sent a letter to Johnson assailing the code, which Johnson refused to receive. He is reported to have declared the letter an insult to the President. A meeting in Johnson's office followed, after which Johnson indicated a difficult situation had been bridged. The operators were not expected to return today. Johnson said:

"The next step will be the hearing scheduled for Monday, and it may be postponed 24 hours."

The Appalachian operators, for years non-union, objected to the elaborate method proposed by Johnson to settle labor disputes. They also objected to the proposed regional sales plan on the ground it did not provide a clear method of control of prices.

LABOR PROBLEM

Linked with the code problem was the effort to bring union labor and the operators into agreement. Negotiations, temporarily broken off yesterday, were to be resumed.

While the bituminous coal situation was held to be a real threat to the NRA, progress was reported in many other lines.

President Roosevelt approved four codes of fair competition, for the motion picture laboratory, cast iron soil pipe, wall paper and leather industries.

Coal Code to Spread 'Model' Sales Agencies

International News Service.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—Close organization of the bituminous coal industry through sales agencies will speedily result from application of the code of fair competition proposed by the NRA, coal experts said today.

A model sales agency, the Appalachian Coals, Inc., already is in operation with the sanction of the Supreme Court. It embraces producers in West Virginia, Virginia, Tennessee and Kentucky.

NRA officials said that at least six agencies would be formed in the northern and Appalachian regions, and other agencies are expected to operate in Ohio, Indiana and Illinois. Through these agencies coal prices would be controlled.

PRICE QUESTION

Success of the code, it was generally agreed by experts, depends upon whether the public will pay the price for coal necessary to support the wage levels proposed by Recovery Administrator Johnson.

No longer king of fuels, coal is now in competition with natural gas, fuel oil and hydro-electric power, especially in the East. Experts say natural gas is coal's chief competitor.

Practical operation of the code is expected to result in the abandonment of many small, high-cost bituminous mines throughout the coal areas. These small companies will be at a disadvantage in most instances, with labor costs equalized by the code and the United Mine Workers agreement, the experts said.

LABOR VICTORY

The code was acclaimed a victory for labor, both in the victory of the United Mine Workers of America and the new minimum wage scales. Comparatively few additional miners will be put to work, unless the market for coal improves. The average working time of the industry is now under 30 hours a week.

The Northern Appalachian operators, in the Pittsburgh district, also scored in the code, experts said. The wage spread between the Northern and Southern Appalachian fields was narrowed, this, however, by agreement.

Under the practice in West Virginia, Eastern Kentucky and Virginia mines, men work until they finish a particular job. It is estimated to take eight hours a day, but often takes 10 to 12 hours. Under the code an eight-hour day maximum is established. This will result in opening up jobs in the Southern Appalachian field.

VOTE PROBERS 'ABSENT;' 3 SET FREE

Investigators Fail To Show Up at 'Hearing'

When county investigators failed to appear against them, three men, "arrested" on what was reported to be conspiracy to violate the registration laws, were discharged last night at a "hearing" before R. H. Lawry, in West Homestead.

The "hearings" grew out of raids staged by state police yesterday on two political headquarters and a club on information signed by William F. Windhorst, investigator in the office of Leo A. Riordan, chief county investigator.

VISIT HEADQUARTERS

Led by Riordan, the police visited the East End Democratic headquarters and notified William J. Friday, Eleventh Ward Democratc aldermanic candidate, to appear for hearing after an exhaustive search failed to disclose evidence.

During the search, Windhorst, with a hammer supplied by Friday, broke open a locked drawer in a safe.

The second raid was made at the Republican headquarters at 210 Federal street, where Edward McKain and James F. McCaffrey were ordered to appear for hearing.

A third raid was made on the Marathon Club, 715 West Diamond street. Andrew W. McGill, president of the club, was ordered to appear.

NO EVIDENCE

The raids were based on information that tax receipts in bulk were to be found, but a search of the three places netted the officers nothing in the way of evidence, they reported.

For more than an hour the "defendants" awaited the arrival of the prosecution. When none appeared Squire Lawry discharged them.

Chris McCormick, named in the warrant in the Marathon Club, appeared at the hearing to deny connection with the club.

Counsel for those arraigned blamed the raids on "politics."

A. May Schwartz, of 147 Margaret street, Mt. Oliver, was arrested by Squire Lawry's constables yesterday on information that she had registered John H. Hahne, a voter, without party affiliation to prevent him from voting in the primary election. She was released in $500 bond.

BALLOONS SEEN IN CANADA

International News Service.

CHICAGO, Sept. 9.—Reports from Quebec and Sudbury, Ontario, today led International Air Race officials to believe that four missing participants in the James Gordon Bennett balloon race might have landed safely in the Canadian forests.

At the request of officials here Quebec provincial and Canadian authorities were searching for the balloonists in the area designated.

The two missing balloons, which took off here with four other bags last Saturday evening from Glenview Airport, are the Goodyear IX piloted by Ward T. Van Orman and Frank Trotter and the Polish Spad manned by Capt. Francizek Hynek and Lieut. Z. Burzlynski.

Two Quebec businessmen, Joseph Douville and J. P. Morin, said they saw a balloon identified as the Polish entry flying low above a Laurentian Mountain forest area north of the village of Riviere a'Pierre at 7 a. m. Monday. The balloon disappeared in a violent thunderstorm, they said.

PRIVATE RELIEF NEED SEEN BY PRESIDENT

Mrs. Roosevelt Also Tells Conference 'It's Not All Up to U. S.'

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—(AP.)—Asserting that he looked upon governmental relief work as of an emergency type, President Roosevelt yesterday told a human needs conference that the duty in the end would be restored to "individual citizens, to individual responsibility, to private organizations." Mrs. Roosevelt also spoke.

He said:

"We are going to have unemployed throughout the United States and we know it. I hope though the time is going to come soon when everybody who normally wants a permanent job is going to get it. And so I like to think of government relief of all kinds as emergency relief."

The President appealed to the nation to loosen its purse strings to help care for the destitute this winter.

To delegates attending the third annual mobilization for human needs conference, Mr. Roosevelt criticized areas "coming hat in hand" to the government without doing their own relief share. He said:

CHARGES POLITICS

"There have been states which have done their share, states where the problems of relief have gotten mixed up with politics; legislatures that are thinking in political and not in human terms."

Education by personal contact for women and money-raising by men comprised Mrs. Roosevelt's program to save people from actual starvation as expressed by her before the conference. Mrs. Roosevelt told the conference last night that actually seeing suffering was a great impetus toward its cure.

MRS. ROOSEVELT'S THEORY

In theory, Mrs. Roosevelt said, the federal government will see that no one starves nor lacks for shelter.

But unless communities are alert to meet their human needs problems, she added, "people will starve and the delightful theory of the government won't help them one bit."

In her role of active leader of the feminine branch of the nation-wide movement to alleviate suffering by private contribution, Mrs. Roosevelt said:

"With every one of you goes my best wishes for success."

MOVE WELFARE TO OLD HALL

The Welfare Fund was to move today into its new headquarters in Old City Hall, now being remodeled by the County Commissioners, with plans under way to have seven of its member agencies in the building by November 15.

The building, in public use for more than half a century, but in recent years unoccupied, was offered to the Welfare Fund at $5,000 annually for three years with a renewal option. The arrangement, it is estimated, will save the charitable organizations to be quartered there approximately 30 per cent in rental and operating expenses.

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—NRA has now reached a stage where its ultimate success is up to the ultimate consumer.

The ultimate consumer can help roll the NRA victory over the top by buying in September.

I believe the Hearst newspapers have provided a most constructive stimulus to the Blue Eagle campaign by initiating this movement.

Good intentions alone will not bring about a national revival. The job is one that requires mass effort, and each of us must help it along.

Every dollar spent in September will lend its weight in inclining the American scales the right way.

BOARD FIGHTS PAYMENT

Exceptions were on file to Judge Thomas M. Marshall's order that J. Clyde Miller, H. H. Dixon and the estate of W. L. Henderson make $840,831 restitution to the county because of alleged mismanagement of the County Home.

Judge Marshall in his decision charged the members of the poor board with negligence in purchase of land for County Home purposes, although not accusing them of profiting personally. The profit of the agent in the deal was shown as the amount charged against the poor directors.

Miller filed exceptions to the ruling, pointing out alleged failure of Judge Marshall to give findings of fact and conclusions of law.

AWAIT REPLY TO ENGELSBERG

The reply of Register of Wills Joseph N. Mackrell to the charges of Joseph Engelsberg, former Hill district leader, that the Progressive Republican candidate for Mayor participated in profits from bootleg booze and a racket "suit club" was being awaited today.

Engelsberg's charges were made public by the Citizens' Committee yesterday.

Engelsberg also said he had loaned Mackrell $35,000 to pay the expenses of John R. Douglas, Jr., in the mayoralty campaign of 1921. The charge was supported by an affidavit of Douglas.

Mackrell indicated yesterday he would reply to the charges when he had read them.

BONE DRY MAINE SET FOR VOTE ON REPEAL

Both Sides Claim State Anti-Wet Since Before Civil War

Associated Press.

Maine, the cradle of prohibition, the state which went officially "bone dry" away back in 1851, votes Monday on the proposal to repeal the Eighteenth Amendment.

Both prohibitionists and repealists were insisting today that the majority sentiment of the state was on their side.

Maine is the twenty-sixth state to ballot on the repeal question. All of the previous 25 have voted to wipe out national prohibition. A total of 36 is necessary before prohibition is repealed.

3 STATES VOTE TUESDAY

On Tuesday three other states—Maryland, Minnesota and Colorado—will register their will on the question. By November 7 at least 39 states will have voted.

In Colorado, both friends and foes of prohibition asserted their forces would be victorious in the repeal election in Colorado Tuesday. Said R. D. Dexheimer, superintendent of the state Anti-Saloon League:

"We are depending on the rural vote to off-set expected majorities in Denver, Trinidad and Pueblo."

Edward Nicholson, head of the Colorado Repeal League, predicted the state will ratify the proposal for repeal by a plurality of more than 50,000 votes.

Maryland is approaching its decision on prohibition with a minimum of excitement. Observers say the campaign, which will culminate in an election on the repeal proposal Tuesday, has been marked by apathy.

HAILS WET VICTORY

Gov. Albert C. Ritchie, known the nation over as an outstanding foe of prohibition, says repeal will win by an "overwhelming majority."

Some 700,000 electors are expected to determine whether Minnesota Tuesday will join the parade of wet states. In 1918, only some 300,000 persons voted in the general election when prohibition was submitted as a state issue, and was defeated for lacking a majority of the number of ballots cast.

Repealists have expected utmost confidence in the outcome of Tuesday's election. The dry factions are reluctant to hazard a guess as to the outcome.

BRANDS REPEAL TACTICS UNFAIR

BROOKLYN, Sept. 9.—Mrs. Ella A. Boole, president of the National W. C. T. U., has declared the use of the depressed economic condition to put over the repeal of prohibition is unfair, unethical and unstatesmanlike. She cited Postmaster General Farley's statement that repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment is an important part of the National Recovery Act. She said:

"Our publishing house was one of the first to comply with the NRA, but we are opposed to the repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment. If repeal comes the liquor traffic will come in like a flood. Much of the money spent for liquor will be diverted from the necessities of life. Legitimate business and the homes will suffer therefrom.

"We believe it is wrong that a country should derive revenue from that which injures its people. The outlook is that if repeal comes, the baneful effects of the liquor traffic will be increased even over pre-prohibition days.

"We protest that men and women, on the plea of loyalty to the President and to a political party and on the plea that certain taxes will be reduced when and if repeal comes, are being forced to vote wet.

"The W. C. T. U. will continue its educational program against the use of alcohol in the home, at social functions, in public and in private. Whatever the nation may do, the W. C. T. U. refuses to retreat before the liquor traffic."

Hatfield Attacks NRA As Peril to Recovery

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—(AP.)—Calling the NRA "a needless impediment which harms and hampers a return to prosperity," Senator Hatfield (Rep.) of West Virginia yesterday informed Recovery Administrator Hugh S. Johnson that "my idea of making NRA a complete success would be to abandon it entirely."

The Senator assailed various phases of the recovery program in a lengthy letter to Johnson, written in reply to a form letter sent by the recovery chief to members of Congress asking their support of the program and welcoming their "suggestions and advice."

Senator Hatfield said he had not announced his candidacy for re-election, adding:

"I would not want to continue in office on the condition that I must bend the knee and render homage to dictates so foreign to our traditional ideas of democracy."

His term expires in 1935.

"I will patriotically co-operate with you in sending a respectful petition to the President to exercise his legislative function of repeal and abandon this ghastly folly of industrial regimentation."

Doom of Double Bill In Movie Code Disputed

A provision in the proposed NRA motion picture industry code that would make the double bill, or two-picture program, in the theater unlawful, was being strongly disputed here today.

The Association of Motion Picture Exchanges has sent out 800 petitions to theaters and their patrons ini the tri-state district asking them to protest the "undesirable" article in the code. James H. Alexander, head of the organization, said:

"If the code prohibits the double bill then the independent film exchanges are whipped—it is an attack on the little fellow. It will give the upper hand to chain theater groups which are better equipped to put on vaudeville with their single picture."

On the other hand, the major companies, which Alexander contends are advocating the single feature, seem to look at the code in a different light. Joe Feldman, director of publicity for Warner Brothers in this district, contended:

"We think that the double bill is ruining the theater. It is not a good practice, we found, to keep the people in the theater too long. It tends to make them disgusted if you keep them sitting for three or four hours."

A part of the disputed Article No. 33 says that the double bill will not be unlawful until 60 per cent of the exhibitors in a theater zone vote in opposition to such a practice. Alexander said that "even with this provision they do not stand a chance."

The motion picture code is to have a hearing in Washington Tuesday.

BOY FOUND WITH INSURANCE FRAUD RING FEARED KIDNAPED

POLICE BAFFLED BY CHILD'S IDENTITY

Doubt if Any of Eleven Grownups Arrested Are His Parents

A 2-year-old boy, at first thought to be the child of two of the 11 members of an alleged automobile insurance fraud ring, may prove to have been kidnaped, city detectives said today as they sent copies of the boy's photograph to police in principal cities in the East.

Taken to Juvenile Court home after the roundup of the alleged ring, the boy was listed as John Giordano. He was brought here by Joseph Giordano, who, with nine others of the ring, pleaded guilty in Criminal Court yesterday. His wife, Anna, also arrested, is critically ill in Leech Farm Hospital.

CHILD OF MYSTERY

Detectives revealed yesterday that among the records seized in the Bates street headquarters of the ring was a birth certificate of one "Sebastian Sampagnaro," who was born, according to the certificate, November 2, 1930.

The certificate was issued by the health department in Albany, November 12, 1931.

It names Angelo Sampagnaro and Carmella Mangiafico as the parents of the child, although Carmella, who is Angelo's wife, never came to this country from Italy, according to Detectives George E. Brubach and Andrew Carciere.

Sampagnaro was among those who entered guilty pleas and posed as Anna Giordano's father.

NEAR LINDY HOME

Brubach said he became puzzled when none of the prisoners seemed concerned about the child when they were arrested, and the fact that it did not resemble any of the suspects. The boy was found when the detectives went to the Giordano home at 1211 James street, in search of evidence, they said.

On the theory that the boy may have been kidnaped detectives photographed him and sent copies to Albany and other eastern cities to establish his real identity. One of the men involved in the ring is a former resident of Hopewell, New Jersey, near the scene of the kidnaping and brutal slaying of Charles A. Lindbergh, Jr.

CLAIRE'S ROMEO TO 'TELL ALL'

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 9.—(AP.)—A promise he will "tell all" was made today by Alfred C. Read, Jr., handsome young Oakland broker who won the heart of Claire Windsor, blonde actress, while he still had a wife.

Read will be called as a defense witness Tuesday at resumption of the trial of his former wife's $100,000 alienation of affections suit against Miss Windsor.

Miss Windsor has testified she allowed Read to court her in belief he was a single man and to continue his attentions when he admitted he was married on his statement he was separated from his wife and contemplating a divorce.

Mrs. Marian Read, divorced wife of Read, completed her case yesterday afternoon.

Mrs. Read testified that Read, seeking a reconciliation, at one time "kidnaped" her and at "the point of an automatic pistol," drove her in his motor car from Oakdale to Silver Stream in the mountains, where he held her "prisoner" until he "passed out" and she escaped.

ANSWERS SUIT OF SINGER

LOS ANGELES, Sept. 9.—(AP.)—Answering the separate maintenance suit of Mary McCormic, grand opera singer, Prince Serge Mdivani, one of the Mdivanis from the Russian principality of Georgia, denies her charges of cruelty and contends he is not obligated in any way to support her, because, he says, she deserted him without cause.

The answer, filed in Superior Court, where Miss McCormic is suing for $600 a month separate maintenance, also denies the singer's allegation that she advanced the prince $40,000 of her own money after their marriage in April, 1931.

Mdivani is under a court order not to dispose of any of his Southern California oil properties, recently put in receivership and later released to him, pending trial of Miss McCormic's suit.

In her complaint, the singer charged Mdivani with many acts of cruelty. She said he threatened to mutilate her and to cripple her for life, once blackened her eye with his fist and urged her to sue for divorce.

Mdivani's brother, Prince David, who is associated with him in the oil ventures, also is under court orders not to dispose of his interests pending trial of the divorce suit brought against him by Mae Murray, film actress.

Patrolman Frank Kowalski's quick "rescue" work was credited today with saving 18-months-old Anna E. Buckley, of 330 South Lang avenue, from possible strangulation yesterday.

Kowalski seized the child and literally shook the iron horse out of her, holding her head downward.

The baby apparently suffered no harm.

CUPID LETTERS OF BRIDE, 71, IN COURT

Your Love My Heaven, She Pens to Mate Half Her Age

CINCINNATI, Sept. 9.—(AP.)—Impassioned letters admittedly written by wealthy 71-year-old Mrs. Kitty Hamilton, of Meadville, Pa., to her 37-year-old husband were introduced yesterday in her replevin suit to recover the expensive automobile she charges he drove away.

But the husband, Claude Hamilton, a railroad switchman, said the car was her gift to him.

The letters were introduced by his attorneys to show, they said, a basis for their contention that the car was intended as a gift.

Mrs. Hamilton said in one letter:

"When I love, it is with all my heart, and your love means my paradise here."

In another, before their marriage, only last February, she wrote:

"Engagement is a fine position to be in, but it does not satisfy me, because I have such a loving disposition that marriage is the only position to give me."

But there were mother-in-law complications, too.

While Mrs. Hamilton languidly fanned herself in the courtroom during the reading of the letters, Mrs. Louis Gannett, Hamilton's mother, waited outside for a call to give her version of disputes with her daughter-in-law older than herself.

MARY TO FIGHT ACTOR'S SUIT

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 9.—(AP.)—Mary Pickford yesterday denied allegations contained in a $250,000 breach of contract suit prepared in New York against her. The film actress said she had instructed her New York counsel to fight the proceedings. She said:

"There is absolutely no truth whatever to the charges. If the case had any merit this suit would have been brought long ago. I shall welcome the opportunity to show in court just how unjust it is."

The plaintiff was Edward Hommer, an elderly vaudeville actor, who described himself as a "former member of the Pickford family." Hommer said he severed his relations with the actress in 1922, when he aligned with her mother, the late Margaret Smith, in oposing the actress' asserted association with her present husband, Douglas Fairbanks, the actor, while still the wife of Owen More, film player.

At that time, Hommer said, he agreed to refrain from taking legal steps for reimbursement for his services to the family unless Miss Pickford's mother neglected to mention him in her will. He said he was overlooked in the will.

Cuba Fears New Coup; Ex-Officers Defiant

Do Not Recognize Government, They Say

were prepared to sell their lives dearly if efforts were made to arrest them or send them back to duty at the point of guns.

The government was said to have received reports that the officers, some of whom still count on the loyalty of their units, had planned to attack the presidential palace.

Other rumors—unverified but nevertheless generaly taken as explanations for the course of events—were that Horacio Ferrer, de Cespedes' secretary of war; Julio Sanguily, and others of high rank, plotted to unseat the leftist commission and replace it with either de Cespedes and his cabinet or by some "concentration" government.

Tending to confirm that rumor, according to some observers, was the arrest in Bayamo, Jiguani, Manzanillo, and Palma Soriano of 16 men who were accused of planning a coup on behalf of former President Mario G. Menocal.

IMPROVEMENT PLEDGED

Meanwhile, with the departure from Cuban waters of the U. S. cruiser Indianapolis, carrying Secretary of the Navy Swanson, a promise was made of an improvement in the administration.

The promise came from Sergio Carbo, spokesman for the executive commission, and represented a departure from the junta rule.

Carbo said the commission, in sessions that lasted far into the night, considered establishing a coalition cabinet with a president at its head, to replace the five commissioners.

The Indianapolis remained in the harbor two hours before proceeding on an inspection tour to Panama and the west coast, and Secretary Swanson did not go ashore.

Early today soldiers attempted to search the National Hotel and their erstwhile commanders for arms, but desisted when United States Ambassador Sumner Welles recommended otherwise.

Welles, a resident in the place, was in the lobby when the would-be searchers arrived. Through the night automobiles were not allowed to enter the grounds. The officers were well armed with machine guns, rifles and pistols.

DEFIANCE VOICED

Maj. Alfredo Doffil, deposed chief of police, asserted, on behalf of the officers, that "we are unanimous in the decision not to return to our posts until the commission and Batista are ousted."

Last night Batista gave out what he called a message from Secretary Swanson. It read:

"There is no disposition on the part of the United States to intervene in Cuba. We simply want peace and order. The United States naval forces sent here are only to protect American lives and not to interfere in the government of Cuba.

"The people of Cuba can and will solve their problems. We hope that they will solve them with justice and generosity. We desire happiness and prosperity for Cuba."

The cruiser Richmond and two destroyers, the Bainbridge and the McKarland, remain in Havana Harbor.

Roosevelt Eyes Situation, Cancels Fishing Trip

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt remained at the White House today to watch swiftly-moving events in unsettled Cuba.

Canceling plans for a fishing trip in the Potomac, the President watched developments at Havana, hoping against hope that the serious step of intervention would not be forced upon this government.

High quarters said the administration would withhold landing forces from Cuban shores as long as no serious rioting threatens American lives. In preparation for any such possible outbreak, vessels had been ordered to such ports as Havana, Santiago, Cienfuegos, the Isle of Pines and to Antilla, where disorders were reported yesterday.

The administration regarded the 30 warships directed to Cuban waters as made necessary by the long coastline of the island. It was emphasized that because of the numerous harbors on both the north and south coasts, a number of vessels were necessary to make sure of the protection of United States citizens.

Most of the fleet standing nearby Cuba was said to have landing crews of only 35 to 40 men a ship.

CRIME EXPERT AIDS LAMSON

SAN JOSE, Cal., Sept. 9.—(AP.)—Usually arrayed on the prosecution's side in criminal trials, E. O. Heinrich, Berkeley criminologist, today prepared evidence which the defense hopes will free David A. Lamson of a charge of slaying his wife.

As the principal expert witness for the defense, Heinrich on the stand late yesterday began laying a scientific background for an expected contradiction of the prosecution experts' testimony when the trial is resumed Monday.

A possible attack on the testimony of Dr. Frederick Proescher, state witness, was indicated as Heinrich referred to methods of distinguishing human blood from that of animals.

Dr. Proescher had told of discovering evidence of blood on a piece of pipe and charred cloth recovered from a bonfire which Lamson was attending in the back yard of his Stanford University campus home just before Mrs. Lamson's body was found.

SLEEP MALADY DEATH BARES 14 CASES

South Side Girl Dies, Others Ill for Three Years

The death in Mayview today of a South Side girl from the effects of sleeping sickness suffered three years ago revealed there are 14 patients in the institution as a result of the 1930 epidemic.

Maris Winnecwi, 23, of 514 Harcums way, a mental patient, died today, according to the coroner's report, of cerebral hemorrhage, psychosis and sleeping sickness.

Dr. J. S. Hammers, superintendent of Mayview, said the young woman had suffered a slight stroke in addition to suffering the effects of sleeping sickness. He said:

"This case was not of recent origin, but goes back to the epidemic of 1930. The young woman was suffering from a condition which is summed up in medical parlance as Tarkinson's syndrome. The mind is affected by contraction of the covering of the brain resulting from inflammation when the disease is active.

"We have 14 patients here with similar symptoms as a result of sleeping sickness of former years. There is no sleeping sickness in the institution at present."

The physicians will next attempt to establish the mode of transmission in humans by attempts to spread the disease from one animal to the others.

'BUY IN SEPTEMBER' URGED BY LEADING CLERGYMEN

NEED FOR NRA CO-OPERATION STRESSED

Extension of the "Buy in September" movement, sponsored by the Sun-Telegraph and other Hearst newspapers, was given today by leading clergymen of Pittsburgh. They stressed particularly the patriotic and spiritual role that can be played by the consumer at this time in backing up the National Recovery Administration's program.

Rabbi Benedict B. Glazer, associate rabbi of the Rodef Shalom Congregation:

"I believe that the 'Buy in September' campaign merits serious consideration and enthusiastic support of the buying public and our community.

"Without the aid of the consumer the beneficent effects of the NRA will be entirely aborted. The purchase of necessities on the part of those who have the means to do so is one way of distributing wealth over wider areas and of providing work and wages for those who at the present are not only unable to buy, but who are not equipped to maintain a decent standard of living."

'ALL SHOULD HELP'

Dr. Carl August Voss, of the German Evangelical Protestant Church:

"There is no doubt that we should all contribute in helping to restore confidence. The church can help by putting the movement on a spiritual basis as well as a material one. If it isn't spiritual then we are lost."

Dr. E. C. McCown, of the Mt. Lebanon United Presbyterian Church:

"I think the people should cooperate with our national authorities in their efforts to bring back the prosperous condition of the country. We should all help in the NRA movement."

Father James R. Cox, of Old St. Patrick's Church:

"The only way out of our present difficulty is to follow our leader, President Roosevelt. It is not a time for opinion, but obedience. We should do what he says and follow his leadership out of the present mess. Only God knows what terrible things are in store for us if we do not do all and everything suggested to make the NRA program successful. It is our only hope—the world's only hope."

URGES SUPPORT

Dr. George W. Shelton, of the Second Presbyterian Church:

"Everybody who has money ought to spend it generously at this time, I think, however, that those persons who are subject to pressure and sympathy are in great danger of straining their credit if they do not spend wisely.

"I think that every rich man should follow the example set by the Mellons, spend as generously and show themselves as patriotic. During the past several years they have gone ahead building the Mellon Institute and the beautiful East Liberty Presbyterian Church, which has given employment to thousands of men during the days of depression."

The Story of Joseph -:- CHAPTER X -:- Told in Pictures by Dan Smith

Jacob yielded at last to the pleading of Reuben, and agreed to let Benjamin go with his brothers to Egypt, to buy more corn and to free Simeon, whom Joseph was holding as surety until Benjamin came.

Taking with them gold to buy corn, also presents of the best fruits of their land, the brothers went down to Egypt and took Benjamin and stood before Joseph; and when Joseph saw that Benjamin was with them he said "God be gracious unto thee, my son." He ordered that a feast be prepared and that all of the brothers should dine with him at noon of that day, in the house where he ruled as Governor of Egypt.

When the brothers showed the steward of Joseph's house that they had brought back the gold they found in their sacks, he said "Peace be to you," and brought their brother Simeon out unto them.

CONGREGATION TO DEDICATE SYNAGOGUE

Workmen and painters today put the finishing touches to the reconstruction work of the Congregation Shaaray Tefillah Synagogue, 23-25 Miller street, which will be dedicated tomorrow at 1 p. m.

Fire this spring destroyed the old building with the exception of its Miller street facade and basement rooms. Church officers had the interior entirely remodeled and repainted this summer at a cost of more than $10,000. The domed ceiling of the auditorium is supported by steel beams instead of wood, and interior changes have improved the facilities and conveniences of the building.

RABBIS TO AID

Rabbi Goodman Rose, of the Congregation Beth Shalim, Squirrel Hill, will open the dedicatory exercises. Many of the leading rabbis of Pittsburgh, including A. M. Ashinsky, Moses Zivitz, William Kutchin, Morris A. Levin and B. A. Lichter, will assist.

Speakers will include Mayor John S. Herron and Judge Benjamin Lencher. Their talks will be followed by a musical program. The cantor of the congregation, Jacob Waid, the Rev. Julius Bloom, and the Rev. B. Kimmel will sing, accompanied by the choir and by Thomas Cohen's orchestra. Samuel Shafer, chairman of the dedication, expects 600 to be present.

Sale of the auditorium chandeliers, the key to the synagogue, and the privilege of carrying the holly scrolls into the new building will conclude the exercises.

TO DEPOSIT SCROLLS

The holy scrolls have been kept in the Congregation Mogan David Synagogue, next door to the rebuilt structure, and the scrolls will be carried from there to the new holy of holies in an impressive procession.

Officers of the congregation are Rabbi Samuel Hausman, teacher; Abraham Pechersky, president; Samuel Kofsky, vice president; Harry Mosenson, secretary, and Jacob Waid, cantor.

Now for the big alibi. A funny thing about this broadcasting business—you say so many things that you never intend to let by your lips and you don't catch

MRS. MILLER ASSAILS PLEDGES OF MACKRELL, WOODSIDE

CHARGES AUDIT WAS DODGED BY CONTROLLER

The sincerity of campaign promises of Joseph N. Mackrell, Progressive Republican candidate for Mayor, and his manager, County Controller Robert G. Woodside, was attacked by Mrs. J. O. Miller, of the Citizens' League, in an address last night.

Mrs. Miller charged Woodside with side stepping a complete audit of the county treasurer's office, delinquent tax collector and all fee offices in 1928, she said, commenting:

"Yet Woodside states his ticket will rehabilitate the Republican party."

A real audit in 1932 revealed, Mrs. Miller charged, that the public had been cheated out of hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Mackrell recently said he had given much thought to the office of City Controller, Mrs. Miller recalled, declaring his choice of Woodside as campaign manager belied his sincerity.

Mackrell has advocated old age pensions, she pointed out, adding that Woodside could have made the lot of the poor happier had he investigated the poor board.

Mackrell can have given no thought to the children in foster homes, many of them spending years in misery, she said, because Controller Woodside made no effort to see money appropriated for them was wisely spent.

Mackrell says he wants to keep the schools out of politics, but has never been in Harrisburg to advocate it, Mrs. Miller asserted.

Henry Promises Fight To Eliminate Slums

Pledging to work for passage of a proper code of housing statutes, John M. Henry, candidate for Democratic mayoralty nomination, attacked Pittsburgh slum conditions, in an address at Hazelwood School last night.

Slums, Henry said, are the breeding places for disease, vice and crime. It is in the slum areas, he charged, that machine majorities are rolled up by padded assessment, phantom registration and police intimidation.

To provide proper conditions, he proposed:

"Reduce the cost of housing construction. Reduce the rate of interest on money borrowed for housing purposes. Reduce taxes on such structures."

If elected, Henry promised to co-ordinate city planning, housing sanitation and recreational agencies to obtain a unity of plan for slum elimination.

Declaring housing the most urgent social question of the day, Henry advocated taking advantage of government loans at low interest to remedy the local situation.

Henry will speak at North Side Carnegie Hall tonight at 8:30. Other speakers are C. G. Lewellyn, former collector of Internal Revenue, Mrs. Charles Minetti and Frnak Bauer.

Always Independent, McArdle Declares

Independence in thought and act are essential qualities of the public servant, P. J. McArdle, Independent Republican candidate for Mayor, said in reviewing his political career last night.

Speaking before the Margaret Brent Civic League, McArdle declared:

"I have never been dictated to. My conscience has been my only guide."

McArdle said he had been in political life for 22 years, most of the time in Council, and had been able to study the operations of city government from every angle.

McArdle and councilmanic candidates on his slate will speak at 3235 Arlington avenue, Sixteenth Ward, tonight at 8:30.

City Still Strongly Republican, Says Mackrell

The first day's registration shows Pittsburgh still very much of a Republican city, Joseph N. Mackrell, Progressive Republican candidate for Mayor, said in addresses in the Thirty-first and Twenty-fourth Wards last night. He asserted the issue of reforming the city would be fought out in the Republican party.

Mackrell and candidates on his ticket will speak tonight at the Thirtieth Ward Progressive Republican headquarters, 105 Bausman street.

Cites Herron 'Record Of Accomplishments'

Speaking in behalf of Mayor John S. Herron, candidate for re-election, and his ticket, Ben L. Steinberg asked in an address last night:

"What is wrong with the City of Pittsburgh?"

Recommending Mayor Herron, he said, is a record of accomplishments, while other candidates have to offer only promises and generalities.

McNair Hails Gains Here by Democrats

Hailing gains in Democratic registration, William N. McNair, candidate for Democratic mayoralty nomination, said meetings of the party were larger now than in the campaign for President Roosevelt last year, in an address at Latimer Junior High School last night.

McNair will speak at a meeting of the Fourteenth Ward Democratic Club, in the Peoples-Pittsburgh Trust Company branch, Forbes street, tonight at 8 o'clock.

HEINZ SCORES DEPUTIES

There is little evidence that Sheriff's deputies are more human or decent than the coal and iron police, John Heinz, Democratic candidate for Sheriff, declared in an address at Tarentum last night. He said:

"When the Republican party ran wild in Pennsylvania and Allegheny County, Republican sheriffs joined the circus. They lent their offices to a series of sell-outs."

Promising impartial protection to rich and poor, Heinz said human rights would be his first consideration if elected.

LINDSAY SLATED FOR 5 TALKS

Attorney Alexander P. Lindsay, candidate for Common Pleas Court, was to speak today at a Hibernian anniversary celebration in McKeesport; before the League of Women Voters, Avalon Borough Building; the Township Commissioners in the Court House, and the Italian-American Society, Verona, and at a dinner meeting at the Reformed Church, Termon avenue.

Phila. Democrats Score Record Gains

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 9.—(AP.)—The third and final day for registration of voters in Philadelphia for the primary election finds independent Democratic leaders hoping to swell their enrollment today to 175,000, a record figure, by the time the polling places close tonight.

For the first two registration days, the Democrats enrolled 108,000 voters, apparently making large inroads on the Republican strength in this city. The Republican enrollment of 258,746 for the first two days represented a drop of approximately 66,000 from the comparable 1932 figures.

Boy 'Bike' Thieves Get Lessons in Mechanics

Good experience in working jig-saw puzzles is being given by Bellevue police to nine boy bicycle racketeers, between the ages of 6 and 12.

The boys, mimicking "big time" automobile thieves, police said, had stolen more than a dozen "bikes," interchanged their parts, painted them and made attempts to sell them.

Prior to their hearing the boys are being made to reassemble the bicycles in their original order.

PAIR CAPTURED IN AUTO CHASE

Two men, captured after one of them was alleged to have stolen a jacket and two sweaters valued at $15 from a downtown department store late yesterday, were held for arraignment in Central Police Court today.

The two, docketed as Philip Farr, 22, of 2010 Braddock avenue, Braddock, and Jame O'Hare, 25, of Holderson street, were captured after a chase through the downtown streets and out the Boulevard of the Allies to Jumonville street.

Police said Farr leaped into an automobile driven by O'Hare after stealing the merchandise.

Motorcycle Patrolmen Louis Keebler and Thomas Morley, passing at the time, took up the chase at Fifth avenue and Grant street. O'Hare denied being implicated in the theft.

BOAT DWELLER FOUND DEAD

William Kennedy, 42, occupant of a houseboat in the Ohio River at the foot of West North avenue, was found dead lying on two automobile cushions on the bank near the boat today. The body was removed to the morgue.

Two other occupants of the houseboat, John Abels, 42, and John O'Connor, 43, were arrested on suspicious person charges by Woods Run police. Abels told police, they reported, that Kennedy had been treated in Allegheny General Hospital since having both jaws broken in a fight March 21. The cause of death was undetermined.

Oliver, Mayor Herron and the councilmanic candidates on his ticket have been indorsed by the Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers of America, Union No. 6.

Waddell Warns Payroll Of Slash After Election

Mangone Indorsed By 27th Ward Club

Donald D. Mangone, candidate for jury commissioner, has been indorsed by the Italian-American Political Club of the Twenty-seventh Ward.

NRA EXEMPTS CHURCH, SCHOOL

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—(AP.)—Exemption from the provisions of the recovery act for non-profit institutions supported by public subscriptions, such as schools and hospitals, was authorized yesterday by the NRA.

The ruling, approved by Hugh S. Johnson, the administrator, said:

"That schools, colleges, universities, churches, hospitals and charitable institutions supported by public subscriptions, not operated for profit, except so far as they may be engaged in the operation of trade or industry, need not come under the provisions of the National Recovery Act."

The interpretation followed consultations between the administration and a committee appointed by Dr. Charles R. Mann, director of the American Council on Education.

PARK BANDITS ROB COUPLE

Two bandits early today held up a couple parked in an automobile in Highland Park, robbed them and escaped in their victim's automobile.

J. B. Eisman, of 5535 Center avenue, owner of the automobile, told police the highwaymen got an empty billfold from him. From his companion, Gladys Eyler, of 3510 Ridgway street, the bandits got 50 cents.

Apparently disappointed in the amount of their loot, the bandits forced Eisman and Miss Eyler to alight from the machine. They drove away after cautioning the couple to keep quiet.

'RAID' CHARGED TO LENCHER

James L. O'Toole, Jr., Democratic candidate for County Court, charged that Judge Benjamin Lencher, candidate for the same court, was attempting to "raid" the Democratic primary by pleading for a non-partisan judiciary.

Saying there could be no non-partisan judiciary in Pennsylvania while judges are elected on party tickets, O'Toole asserted Lencher owed his position on the bench to his activity in Republican politics.

Lysle Forecasts Victory Over Rival

Mayor George H. Lysle, of McKeesport, predicted that his opponent for Republican mayoralty nomination, Dr. H. S. Arthur, would not carry a single ward of the city, in a statement last night. Mayor Lysle said his appearances were being greeted with more enthusiasm than in any other campaign.

2 Killed, 4 Hurt In Auto-Bu Crash

The dead were Mrs. Joseph Small, of Essington, aP., and Miss Rose Whalen, 26, of this city.

'BUTTONS' AIDS 11 DAILY TO 'BUY NOW'

"Buttons," the Sun-Telegraph pageboy, is turning Pittsburgh upside down. And why not? "Buttons" is doing the unusual thing. He's giving away money. In these days just emerging from a long scarcity of the "long green," Pittsburghers naturally welcome presents of cash—presents that drop out of clear sky.

It's this way. "Buttons" has a mission to perform for the Sun-Telegraph. It is his job to boost the drive "Spend a Dollar . . . Make a Job . . . Buy in September and Save."

"Buttons"

So "Buttons" goes out every day with $15 in his pocket to give away. He doesn't know whose doorbell in the printed list he will ring first—whom he will "page" first. He "pages" 11 residents of Pittsburgh every day. To one of these 11 he makes an outright present of $5.

The complete daily list of fortunate persons to be "paged" is printed in the Classified Ad pages of the Sun-Telegraph every day. "Buttons" takes a day off Sunday. Watch for him Monday.

VOTE MACHINE FOE BLOCKED

An attempt by Attorney John R. Frankel, associate of State Senator James J. Coyne, to prevent the use of Allegheny County's voting machines in the primary election was believed blocked today.

Frankel's petition asking for a re-examination of the rebuilt voting machines, was forwarded to Richard J. Beamish, Secretary of the Commonwealth. Mr. Beamish replied that one of the machines would be taken to Harrisburg for examination, probably after the primary.

County Commissioners on March 26, 1930, purchased 1,100 machines from the Poole Engineering Company at Baltimore. The machines developed defects and were examined twice by state boards. The first group rejected the machines; the second recommended approval if specified changes were made. The County Commissioners ordered the machines rebuilt, but only 79 are ready for use, Frankel's petition states.

Court Move Only Hope to Block Work at Mine

Residents in the vicinity of Wenzel and West Liberty avenues who wish to prevent the United States Coal and Supply Company from building a few fan and power house in that neighborhood will have to carry their fight to Common Pleas Court.

The Board of Zoning Adjustment yesterday refused City Council's request to withdraw a permit for improvements at the mine.

Council's request to the board followed complaints from residents that there was danger of streets being undermined and caving in.

The board in a letter to Council, said the property owners have the right to appeal to Common Pleas Court within 30 days after the board's decision. Its ruling was made August 25.

The letter was signed by two members of the board, W. C. Rice and Eugene L. Connelly. The other, J. W. Cree, Jr., was not present at the meeting.

Personal Honesty Query Finds Little Response

What the lawyers think of the personal honesty of the Judicial candidates, now in the heat of the primary campaign, will not be counted unless there is a heavy response on this quesaion—a part of the questionaire sent members of the Allegheny County Bar Association.

Less than half of the more than 1,800 members of the Association answered the questionaire and the answers of this minority are being counted and tabulated today. Tabulation will be completed tomorrow.

Answers to the questionaire were received from 857 members of the association and it was announced three were thrown out. All answers will be counted, it was said, but unless at least 25 members voted on the personal honesty of the candidates, these answers would not be recorded against any candidate.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

Sycophant

Time was I was rich in youth and charms,
And my hair was gold like the sun.
He held me close in his hungry arms—
But that's all done.

He whispered to me and I loved the words
Which fell so sweet from his tongue,
For the trees, the flow'rs and the singing birds
And I—were young.

He knew my throat and my soft white hands,
And my mouth and my eyes so blue,
But the soul in woman which understands—
He never knew.

I've almost forgot my heart's old sore,
And my hair is gray like the rain,
He flatters the girl who lives next door—
I feel no pain.

—Arlen O'Shea.

Add Pet Gags

Alexander Woollcott's list of quips that never grow feeble is that one about Noel Coward and Hannen Swaffer, the London critic. Coward liked Swaffer, but he made him nervous at his premier, and so he barred him.

"Come back stage after the play, on my second night," Noel said. "I will feel better." To which Swaffer agreed.

After the second performance the critic went to Coward's undressing room and couldn't resist a dig. "Ah, Noel, my lad," he said, "I've always said that you acted better than you wrote."

"Now isn't that a coincidence," Coward niftied, "for that's what I've always said about you!"

Quiteso, Quiteso

Mr. Elinson has a groan to offer. He says the NRA, which is trying to give more people work—appoints Kate Smith as chairman of the Actors' Division, instead of practicing what it preaches and giving the job to two other girls.

Ouch!

J. G. Taylor Spink, of the Sporting News, knows all the good baseball stories. He forwards one on Babe Ruth, who wasn't always good at remembering names or faces. There was the time when the Babe, a pitcher, chucked a game in which he allowed no runs and only two hits.

That night he met Stuffy McInnis, first sacker, who also starred in the game for the other team, in the hotel lobby. "That was a good game," complimented Stuffy.

"Thanks, kid," replied Ruth, "where were you sitting?"

By Way of Report

The Motion Picture Relief Fund receives contributions from several in the cinema industry. Even the smaller fry have signed pledge cards to kick in half of one per cent to help out those who are less lucky. And they have given gladly, because in this hit and run racket—a lad never knows when he will be on that list.

The fund has done much good, and never is there any horn-tooting, bell-ringing or flag-waving. One of the nicer things it has done is to check back over the years to dig up the plight of the once-upon-a-timers—who were somebodies. Usually it is discovered that the former favorites are in need. The fund hastens with coin and nobody ever knows, except the fund officials, who accept the charity.

But what pains the fund is that your favorite stars, who think that success is permanent, have snubbed it. They plead "private charities," always a good alibi. The head of it is a famous actress out there, still "box office," who hasn't half the money that they have—because for years she has given it to the distressed and to her countless "private charities." And we agreed not to mention her name, which gives you an idea of her character. We didn't promise not to mention her initials, which are M. D.

Nifties

From David Murray: My barber has just returned from Hollywood. He says he didn't like it out there because he had to be too careful—so he wouldn't cut an actor and puncture his head. The trouble with being a newspaperman is that you meet so many people who have to be made to seem interesting . . . A gold-digger is a girl who acts sweet at first—then gets sticky . . . Add similes: Reliable as sex-appeal.

The Morning Mail

"Dear Winchell," writes P. D., "caught your broadcast at the shore last night—especially liked the wider angle of news coverage. Here are two errors of pronunciation I caught. Hope you won't be offended. The word eluded, for instance. The "u" is as in cute, not as in dude. The other word was "desperado"—the "a" is long, as in made, not as in ah."

Thahnks.

Add Similes

George Jean Nathan's: "As convincing as a chorus man's suit for alienation of affections" . . . Norman Sullivan's: "About as profitable as shining Carnera's shoes for a nickel" . . . Pare Lorentz's: "Dull as a news photo of Hollywood celebrities entering Grauman's Chinese Theater."

'Best Seller' Is Revived In Penn

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Once upon a time Katharine Cecil Thurston wrote a "best seller" that bore the title of "The Masquerader," and told about a member of Parliament who had a double. When the M. P. fell down on his job, the double made his speeches and saved Old England. The M. P. also had a wife, whose love he had forfeited by his misbehavior, but the double wins her love by his true blue conduct. Finally the worthless M. P. dies as is his romantic duty, and nothing more prevents the double from being happy and saving England.

Mr. Seibel

The good old story has been made into a picture, on view at the Penn Theater, with Ronald Colman playing the dual role of John Chilcote and John Loder. As Chilcote he spurns his wife, the beautiful Elissa Landi, drinks much brandy and is persistently vamped by a very wicked brunette. But there is a faithful butler who is concerned about the honor of the house, and assists in making the masquerade successful until the M. P. has died of undiscovered identity and is buried as John Loder, while the neglected wife has discovered John Loder and is as happy as Captain Christopher on Columbus Day.

It's a very nice romance put on very well, with fine London fogs and well-trained seals in Parliament rising en masse to cry "Hear! Hear!" every time England is saved by mediocre soap-box oratory.

There is also a very thrilling melodrama staged by Mickey Mouse and Walt Disney, in which "Three Little Pigs" are pursued by a very bad wolf, who finally comes to grief to the great joy of the three little pigs and the whole audience.

Several comic features—Cherokees staging a burlesque football game and a beer garden farce—may also be recommended for the blues.

ALICE BRADY, SILENT SCREEN STAR NOW IN THE TALKIES, TAKES SOME CHAIR FOR SELF, REST FOR DRESS

Homely Film In Stanley Touching

By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Old Doc Watt, mender of hearts and bodies—that's Lionel Barrymore in "One Man's Journey," swell picture in the Stanley that is as certain to steal into your own heart as if you were one of the actual people who learn to love the good Dr. Watt, who is just a "country plug" of a physician. You are sure to liken him to some similar man of medicine of your own acquaintance, and to thank heaven that there really are such men in the world.

Our Dr. Watt, discouraged by the death of his wife, returns to his old home town, a rural village, with his little boy, and there you see him in his struggles to establish a practice, answering every call, coming at first only from those unable to pay except in farm products—two bushels of potatoes for a new baby, for instance. It is all so honest and pathetic that tears WILL come.

And so he goes throughout the years, as his son grows up to become a more pretentious doctor than his daddy, and the first baby he introduced grows to motherhood, and the man who hated him becomes his friend, and the community comes to revere him for the sacrifices it knows he has made, but in the end he is professionally acknowledged as a great man in his calling, because he knows the mind and heart as well as medicine and routine pathology.

Of course, there is comedy—and romance, too, among the young people, but the various angles all touch one focal point, Dr. Watt, one of the finest characterizations of Lionel Barrymore to date. He is ably seconded by May Robson, his sharp-spoken, but efficient housekeeper. Dorothy Jordan, James Bush, Joel McCrea and Frances Dee supply the romance, and the basis of the drama.

Miss Hepburn In Warner

By MILDRED FILLMORE

After a week in the Stanley, where the audience liked it a lot, "Morning Glory" yesterday opened for a week in the Warner. Katharine Hepburn adds to her rapidly growing prestige in "Morning Glory," which is the story of a young actress, who goes to crash Broadway and fails. The young fellow believes in her, however, and keeps her in view all the time as she goes lower and lower on the theatrical ladder. That is Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., and when a heady leading woman gets temperamental Miss Hepburn plays her part and wins success at last.

Characterization is excellent on the part of both these principals, the supporting cast, including Adolphe Menjou, Mary Duncan and C. Aubrey Smith.

McLaglen Star In Davis

By ZORA D. UNKOVITCH

Victor McLaglen, in "Laughing at Life," provides a thrill a minute to the audiences in the Davis in the regular style of the old-time nickelodeon hair-raisers. Settled life is obnoxious to this erstwhile soldier of fortune so he keeps on a constant go.

For many minutes we are taken on a somewhat dizzying trip around the world, starting with a construction job where McLaglen is forced to leave his wife and son after knocking out a policeman who is trying to arrest him, and then jumping from rum-running in the South Seas to banditry in China, and heaven-knows-what, in Africa.

After so much excitement the producer tries to bring in a little sentiment when McLaglen, tied down because he is in a hospital, gets a childish scrawl telling him to please come home because "Mamma died last Sunday and I want you." He does go home only to find the house burnt down and little Pat gone, no one knows where.

Then he's off to war, his useful dare-devil self, disobeying orders and winning a medal. By the time the medal is to be presented to him he has gotten himself into and out of prison.

Eventually, in a South American republic, McLaglen, as Capt. Easter, leads revolutionary forces after inducing an excitement-hungry young civil engineer to join him.

There the dramatic denouement that you've been expecting occurs.

Lois Wilson and Regis Toomey are in the cast.

Primo Misses Norma

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 9.—Half the beauties of Hollywood have visited the Primo Carnera-Max Baer set at Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, but the vast Venetian confessed his disappointment. The one actress he wanted to see, his screen favorite, has not been among them.

She is Norma Shearer.

Sitting beside the ring, his massive hands bound with tape, the world's champion, as humble as any fan, expressed the hope that he might meet Miss Shearer before he had completed his picture work today.

Film beauties in general confuse the Giant boxer.

"There are so many of them," he said.

Primo has been to only one night club during his stay in Los Angeles. Some day he hopes to come back and see Hollywood.

You hear, and they swear it's true, that the surgeon who removed Claudette Colbert's appendix made a special incision so that no scar will show when she dons the scanty robes of Cleopatra in a forthcoming De Mille picture.

Claudette went home from the hospital Thursday after a record recovery and was to sail for Honolulu today.

Fifi Dorsay is singing the blues. She's crazy about her role in Marion Davies' picture, but y'see she's also crazy about that young interne in a Chicago hospital. His name is Maurice Hill and he's a graduate of the University of Wisconsin.

The vivacious star says she wants to get married this time, but that wedding bells will have to wait until her young man completes his term in the hospital—and that's 18 months.

Fete to Lindy On Screen

THE GLOBE TROTTER

The first pictures of Col. and Mrs. Lindbergh completing their North Atlantic flight, come from Copenhagen and are contained in the current issue of Hearst Metrotone News. Lindy and Anne come ashore through streets made practically impassable by the surging crowds. Another demonstration takes place when the Colonel and Anne leave the town hall. The Globe Trotter describes their reception and trip.

Pictures from Pikes Peak show daredevil drivers plunging around dangerous curves in the 12-mile race against time to the summit. Glen Schultz wins.

In a stirring talk at the World's Fair, Gen Hugh Johnson warns those who are displaying the Blue Eagle that they must live up to their pledge.

Jean Jeffrey, 9-year-old Buffalo girl, is seen swimming across the Niagara River not far from the brink of the great falls.

Ralph Ayres, of Eastonville, Col., demonstrates how he has trained humming birds, a feat heretofore thought impossible.

The West winds up its rodeo season with the Okalbo a Stampede at Pasadena, Cal. The wildest bunch of broncbos and cows ever seen give the cowboys and girls a lively time.

(Note—Owing to the necessity upon theater managers to arrange their programs in time schedules, it is possible that some of the subjects in the above issue of Hearst Metrotone News may not be shown in your theater.)

Musical Comedy Film In Sheridan Square

"Moonlight and Pretzels," comedy with music which recently was shown downtown, is now the attraction in the Sheridan Square, where it opened yesterday. In the cast are Mary Brian, Leo Carillo and Roger Pryor in the leading roles. It is a pleasing picture with spectacular incidents.

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

The Scene Shifts

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.—I'm out of the hospital, my friends. Of course, I'm hobbling around on the crutch-as-crutch-can system, and the bad leg still retains an infernal cast that reaches from away down to high up. But what the devil. After the six weeks I've just put in on a hospital bed, I'd be a pretty ungrateful guy if I didn't thank my lucky stars that I'm able to get around at all.

What I'm doing in Atlantic City at this stage of the game is another story. The doctor was sitting in my room the other morning and I was feeling pretty low, I had just been informed that it would be best for me to remain in the hospital another few weeks.

"You see," asserted the medico, "there is no sense in taking any unnecessary chance. Better an extra week now than eight more later.

At that precise moment my wife breezed in. The doctor leaped to his feet.

"Ah, Miss Gladys Glad," he cried, "I am so happy to see you again. You look very beautiful this morning."

"The name is Mrs. Hellinger," I growled.

The young lady ignored me completely, which is a habit she acquired directly after the first of our series of marriage ceremonies.

"Thank you, doctor," she breathed. "It's good of you to be so kind, especially when I'm going to ask a favor of you. They've requested me to be a judge at the Atlantic City Beauty Pageant—and I'll take the job if you'll let Mr. Hellinger go with me."

"Why, certainly," was the doctor's astounding reply. "Certainly he's well enough to go. I was talking with him about it just before you came in. Nothing like a little sunshine and fresh air. Yes, indeed."

I regarded him with suspicious eyes. "Listen, doc," I inquired. "Am I going nuts, or something? Didn't you just tell me that I had to remain in the hospital?"

He shrugged his shoulders.

"I've changed my plans," he returned breezily. "The world of medicine adapts itself to conditions. If Miss Glad thinks it best for you to go to Atlantic City, that's where you are going to go."

Well, with permission to go to Atlantic City, the only problem that remained was to get there. I used the telephone to advantage. And within the hour Mr. Howard C. MacDougall was in my room.

In case you are not familiar with Mr. MacDougall's name, I might tell you that he is in the rather strange business of supplying ambulances at a moment's notice.

"Mac," I said, shortening his name because of the depression, "the doctor tells me I can go to Atlantic City today. I can't go by train, and—"

"Okay," he interrupted. "We'll have you there in no time. We'll take you right over to the Newark Airport in an ambulance—and then transfer you to our airplane ambulance. You remain in bed as the pilot flies you down, and—"

His voice trailed off as I looked at him in astonishment. An airplane ambulance was something entirely new to me.

What should I tell the man? It wouldn't be good policy to tell him that I didn't like planes, and that I flew only when it was absolutely necessary. So I lied smilingly.

"To tell you the truth, Mac, my doctor doesn't want me to fly. I love planes, but he's fussy that way. Seems that he doesn't fly himself, and he refuses to allow his patients to do so either. In that direction, he's a very strange man."

At that moment the door opened and—of all people—my doctor walked in again.

"Well, Mark," he chirped after I had introduced him to Mr. MacDougall, "I've got a great suggestion for you. And it'll be a thrill, too. Why don't you hire an airplane ambulance and fly down to Atlantic City?"

I shifted very uncomfortably.

"To tell you the truth, boys," I stated confidentially, "I'd take a plane in a second. But I can't do it on account of my wife. She's a little afraid of them. So I guess I'd better go in an ambulance."

They accepted my explanation then. So it doesn't matter much if I tell them now that my wife would rather fly than eat.

The trip down was uneventful. The ambulance was very skillfully driven, and we shot in and out of traffic in a manner that warmed my heart.

Arriving here, a huge crowd gathered in front of the hotel to see me yanked out. I don't know what there is about an ambulance or a sick person that attracts a crowd—but before I knew it I was surrounded by a large group that looked at me as though I were a human skeleton or a dog-faced lady.

And just as though that wasn't bad enough, a mug stepped out of the ambulance and began to pump my hand warmly.

"Well, well, well," he cried, "if it isn't my old friend Mark Hellinger. Haven't seen you down here in at least four years. You remember me, don't you? Bill P———— formerly with the Philadelphia Bulletin. That's right.

"Glad to see you again, boy. Don't see much of you these days, but I want you to know that I always read your column. Never miss an issue."

He looked at the ambulance. He looked at my crutches. He looked at the huge cast on my foot. Then he stepped back.

"What's the matter, boy?" he inquired. "Hurt your foot?" . . .

THE NEW FASHIONS ARE KIND TO TYPES OF 'LITTLE WOMEN'

HAVE WE, in our animated response to such fashion vagaries as great shoulder width, exaggerated points, revers, wide-brimmed hats, heavy capes of foxes, plumes on hats and such things, overlooked the problems of "Little Women?"

* * *

BY LITTLE WOMEN we mean not the quaint characters who may have stepped out of Louisa May Alcott's famed book by the same name, but the majority of women who live today. By actual count, it is said that seven out of 10 women are five-feet-four or less, which means probably that you and you and you and most of your friends are in the class spoken of above!

* * *

DRESS MANUFACTURERS haven't forgotten them. There are many who specialize in solving the clothes problems of these women. They consider a dress from an architectural viewpoint, in relation to the figure that will wear it. It is their objective to make small women look taller and as slim as possible!

* * *

EXTREME FASHIONS often need modifications to be wearable. For instance, capes are swinging in stronger than ever this year. Many are extreme in cut, but the capelet sleeves in the afternoon frock sketched are not too full. The surplus closing to one side is slenderizing. Details like this make a modish dress that can be worn becomingly by small women.

* * *

THE DINNER dress shouldn't be too difficult to find, either. Insist on simplicity, long lines and monotone of color, and you'll be safe. The black velvet ensemble in the picture was chosen because it is such a perfect illustration of all these points. You can catch a faint glimpse of the exquisite black shadow lace yoke peeping through the jacket. This is a favorite treatment of dinner dresses for small women. All in all, this costume sums up to unmistakeable chic, and it will make the wearer look tall and slim. With it, a matching black velvet dinner cap is worn.

9-9

* * *

THE "BUBBLE-BRACELET" of pearls and the ring that matches are a suggestion to wear with either of the costumes. On the dinner dress a rope of pearls, in the newer long 18-inch length, would be an excellent alternative.

County League of Women Voters Kept Busy With Candidate Meetings

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Candidates' meetings are occupying virtually all the attention of local units of the County League of Women Voters these days. Five meetings are scheduled for Monday alone. One of these will be a combined session of the Seventh, Tenth and Eleventh Wards in McCann's, Highland avenue, at 2 o'clock.

The Fourteenth Ward unit meets Monday night in the Colonial School and at the same hour the North Side leagues will have a community meeting in the Community House, Union avenue.

The Bellevue League has also chosen Monday night for its meeting which will be in the Borough Hall. The Twelfth Ward League will meet in the Lemington avenue school at the same time.

Members of the Twenty-sixth Ward League are asked to come to American Legion Hall Tuesday at 1 o'clock (an hour prior to the meeting) for a voting machine demonstration. That evening in the Borough Hall, the Avalon members will hear candidates for local and county office.

Mrs. G. E. Campbell, of Dickson avenue, is giving her home on Wednesday afternoon for the Ben Avon unit's meeting, which is not, however, a candidates' meeting, but will be addressed by Mrs. R. Templeton Smith, county chairman. The Thirty-second Ward women will have their meeting that afternoon in the Gulf Building and will visit the Better Homes Exhibit.

Candidates for local and county offices will be present at the Dormont-Mt. Lebanon League meeting in Dormont New Century Club Wednesday afternoon when, in addition to the speeches, a musical program will be presented by Stephen Pillischer, violin, and Gertrude Robinson Dodds, piano.

There's to be a demonstration of the voting machine at the Twentieth Ward meeting Thursday evening in Langley High School and candidates will be present to present their platforms. That same evening, the Wilkinsburg unit is to have its candidates' meeting in the Penn-Lincoln Hotel.

Beautiful . . . gorgeously gowned . . . seen among the smartest gatherings of the spectacular New York night life . . . but that was all that was known of her!

A girl of the shadows living a life that was not her own—jewels, money, every luxury thrown at her feet by men who could not resist her beauty. BUT when one man offered LOVE she made a sacrifice that is the story of one of the most startling and sensational motion picture entertainments of the day!

People Who Help Relatives Shouldn't Tolerate Abuse

Are folks grateful if you make a doormat of yourself?

Even when you do it out of love . . . for those who are nearest and dearest . . . your own mother, sisters and brothers . . . do they appreciate it?

For five years "Distressed" has been doing just that. And what is she getting in return? Read for yourself. Maybe it's a picture of someone in your own home.

Dear Miss Robinson:

I don't know what path to follow. Won't you please help me?

For the past five years I have worked constantly and given my entire salary to my mother, to help bring up my four younger brothers and sisters. You see, my father has been confined to the hospital for the past 14 years and has been unable to earn anything.

Today, at 22, I receive no kind word for my willingness to help. In no way does mother think of my future. Not a cent of my salary does she allow me to save, so today, in spite of my teeth being badly neglected, she tells me to "wait and earn more" before I think of fixing them. I am only making $17 a week now, but she makes no effort whatever toward economy, and she has no idea of giving me a hand with the debts she runs up. And she'll grumble all day long about my wanting to go out for some small recreation.

GETS LITTLE RESPECT

I have been forced to do away with all friends, so that she could rest assured of not losing me and my weekly salary. If, by chance, someone invites me to the theater, I am forced to lead the children along. She even urges them to rebuke me about whatever I do. I am not allowed to say one word about my rights. Our relatives have often wondered how I could stand her greediness.

And now she is even going so far as picking out a youny man . . . who is to her liking . . . for me to marry. She wants to keep her thumb on me, even though I am married. She has actually proposed to him for me. This causes me great embarrassment.

Many a time I have thought of leaving home. But if I do, I know the rest of the family will be in a bad plight, for she will take out her spite on them. And heaven knows I don't want to see them suffer.

Then, too, my salary is so meagre, and I have no friends, so I don't know where to go. But to stay at home, the way things are will drive me insane. Day after day, I come home from work, to listen to her criticism and hatefulness.

Why is she like that? And if she has so little respect for her own daughter, what will strangers think of me? Please tell me—what should I do? Should I leave home? DISTRESSED.

FIGHT FOR RIGHTS

What shall you do?

Stand up for your rights, my dear. If you want other people, even home people, to respect them, respect them yourself. Assert yourself. God didn't create you to be their service station. You're under no obligation to take abuse. And if you won't take it, you won't get it.

It's up to you, youngster. Since you have done so much for your family, they are your debtors. Remember that, and stop taking whatever they choose to hand out to you. Tell them, quietly, but plainly, that if they can't thank you for what you have done and are doing, and treat you decently, you'll leave.

And then if things don't get any better—do it!

You're your own woman. You've let yourself be kicked around so much that it may be hard for you to realize that, but if you will realize it, and act accordingly, it will solve your problem.

And does that go for mother?

It certainly does! Mothers can be Grafters and Blighters, as well as other humans, and yours seems to hold quite a record in that line.

'WINNIE WINTER'

Drawn by Nell Brinkley

I look out of my window into the grayness of the rain lashing in from the Atlantic and think, "Just now the drop curtain of the seasons has more than one scene upon it. It holds summer and winter together." For summer is still loitering around, hating to go, and winter is sewing on her new winter fashions. She already has some in the plate-glass windows for bright eyes to goggle at! There is a smell of autumn in the air, a drifting leaf or so to catch on your big sleeves or decorate the sidewalk, and fall rain; which is somehow different from summer rain. And yet the summer girls still hang on—lightly clothed—bare of great areas of skin, looking at winter like an unwelcome stranger.

"Who are you?" this from Wanda in a white slick bathing suit that luckily ties and laces on ENOUGH to stay, hair careless, toes free to wiggle pinkly, Willette in shorts and shirt, free to shake a leg indeed, Wilda in spotty pajamas over nothing at all, her body rejoicing in the play of air like dry, cool water from forehead under the golden bang to toes in fragile sandals, Wendy in jumper and Alice-in-Wonderland ribbon. "Who are you?" from the girls in the garb of summer, to the girl with so many clothes on.

And she says, cocking an eye from under her new velvet beret on the cowl of which a belated shining bee seems to have made a landing, "I'm Winnie Winter. And oh girls, look at the angel of a frock that's going to be worn this winter by such as you and you and me!"

And if they look they're lost! Beloved pajamas are forgotten, the shorts that were to be loved forever, even if winter came, are ousted from the heart of Willette, the lived-in bathing suit folded away with the moth crystals and a sad sweet love-affair or two, the jumper and all the free and easy summer days it stands for abandoned, when the velvet and fur, "handled in an entirely new manner!" appear. Silk stockings roll on bare brown legs again; and the elegancies are pursued.

NELL BRINKLEY.

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Wedding Attire

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

1—I am to be married soon. It is to be a simple home wedding. My dress is ruffled silk net, short sleeves, so I am going to wear long kid gloves. Is it permissable to remove the glove during the ceremony, or should I have the finger of the glove slit? Could I wear the gloves during the reception?

2—The ceremony is to be performed in the presence of my family only. I am not having a veil. Should I adorn my head with a coronet of flowers or jewels?

3—What would be correct for the bridegroom to wear? C.

1—Usually, instead of having the glove slit, the bride removes her glove, or at least the hand of the glove, just before the ring part of the ceremony.

Use your own choice about wearing your gloves during the reception. Unless the wedding reception is very formal, gloves aren't worn, especially for a summer wedding.

2—If the bride doesn't wear a veil, she usually wears a hat, and I would advise you to do this. With your ruffled net dress, a net hat or a soft horsehair hat would be most harmonious.

3—The bridegroom may wear the formal cutaway coat and striped trousers. Or, for this informal wedding, he may wear the informal dark blue business suit. Or for the informal summer wedding at home, he may wear the dark blue coat and white flannel trousers.

Autographing a Photo

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I would like some advice in regard to autographing a photograph of myself for a very dear buddy . . . a buddy I think the world of. He has been sick with tuberculosis for some years and when his parents go out in their car they always call for me, and have made me one of the family.

He has gone to the country now, and has written and asked me for a photograph of myself. Please give me a good verse to write across the picture.

RUDOLPH.

This should be, I agree, a very important message, for this friend will have so much time to look at it and to think about it and to value everything of friendship that it carries. It isn't easy for a stranger to suggets such significant words! But how would you like something like this: "To a great friend and to a great friendship." Or, "To a masterpiece of a friend and a masterpiece of a friendship." Or, "To Bob, a fine gentleman and a fine friend." Or, "To Bob, in gratitude and appreciation of a great friendship."

Wedding Announcement

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I have just received an announcement of a marriage. No invitation was extended—just the announcement after the marriage had taken place.

Is it correct to send a gift or just congratulations? S.

It's just as we wish about sending an acknowledgment after we have received a marriage announcement. Sometimes we don't send any acknowledgment. Sometimes, if we know the people fairly well, we send a note of congratulations and best wishes. And we may send a gift, if we know the couple very well and wish to have some part, even a small one, in their new home.

Informal Wedding Attire

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am in doubt as to the proper outfit I am to wear. I will be married very soon on a Sunday afternoon in a private restaurant. Can I wear a white silk suit with a picture hat, or do I have to be dressed like a bride?

I will have about 25 couples at the reception. W.

It would be far better form and taste for you to wear an informal outfit for this informal kind of wedding. I like very much the idea you have in mind . . . the white silk suit with a picture hat.

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

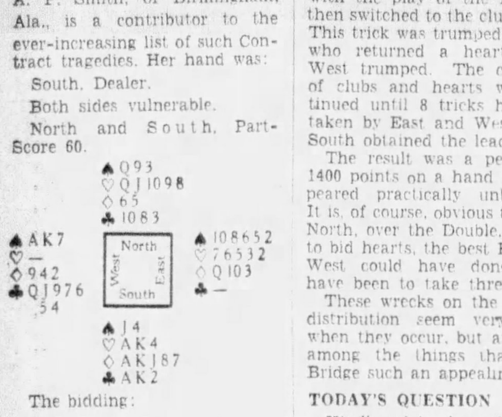
A Tragic Hand

All of us have heard many stories about hands, seemingly unbeatable, that are wrecked on the reefs of distribution. Mrs. A. P. Smith, of Birmingham, Ala., is a contributor to the ever-increasing list of such Contract tragedies. Her hand was:

South, Dealer.

Both sides vulnerable.

North and South, Part-Score 60.



The bidding:

South	West	North	East
2 ◇	Pass	2 N T	Pass
3 ◇	Double (1)	Pass (2)	Pass
Pass

1—A very bad Double. West, against an Opening bid of two in a suit, has no right to anticipate that he will be able to defeat a contract of three. In fact, so far as his holding is concerned, the contract should be made with an overtrick in addition.

2—Perhaps North is not to blame for passing the Double of three diamonds. Had there been no Double, he must, of course, have bid three hearts, but he has a right to assume that, with a partner strong enough to open with a Forcing bid of two in a suit, any contract of three should be easily makable.

West's Opening lead against the doubled contract was the spade King, which he followed with the play of the Ace. He then switched to the club Queen. This trick was trumped by East, who returned a heart, which West trumped. The cross-ruff of clubs and hearts was continued until 8 tricks had been taken by East and West before South obtained the lead.

The result was a penalty of 1400 points on a hand that appeared practically unbeatable. It is, of course, obvious that had North, over the Double, decided to bid hearts, the best East and West could have done would have been to take three tricks.

These wrecks on the reefs of distribution seem very tragic when they occur, but are really among the things that make Bridge such an appealing game.

TODAY'S QUESTION

Kindly advise how this hand should be bid. North-South are vulnerable with a part-score of 40. East-West are not vulnerable. Should West consider East's Double a Penalty or a Takeout Double in the following situation?

North	East	South	West
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♣	Pass
2 ♠	Double	Pass	?

Answer: A Takeout Double. The Double is clearly a defensive measure and should not be considered a Penalty Double as the contract is not higher than two notrump or three in a suit and partner has not made a call other than a pass. East wishes West to choose between diamonds and hearts.

A Sequel to Heart Of a Wife

By ADELE GARRISON

Madge Must Accept Veritzen's Assumption About Call

I must have been most obtuse, because it was not for a full second that the real flavor of Philip Veritzen's "I understand—perfectly," reached me. When it finally did, I put down the little French telephone with violently trembling fingers. If he had been within reaching distance, I think I should have wrenched it from its cord and hurled it straight into the face which I guessed even now held a gratified, fatuous smile.

He thought that I had come away from home to telephone him because I feared Dicky's jealous displeasure if he should overhear my part of the colloquy, and imagine the rest! And there was no way that I could change his belief. To try to explain would betray that I realized what he was thinking. No, I must swallow this last nauseous pill as I had many others in my association with this super-egotist. If I could manage to get him to the wedding in a humor even half way decent, I must be prepared to dwarf all other considerations.

I pulled myself together, and reached my hand for the bell that Hugh Grantland had told me to ring when I was ready to return to the living room. Another wave of disgust went over me as I faced the difficulties of explaining to Hugh the necessity of putting in another call to Mr. Veritzen's office before I should go home.

SEEKS ADVICE

There was only one thing to do, I decided—tell him frankly what had occurred during my telephone interview with the Veritzen organization and ask his advice concerning the course I had pursued in shielding Avis Arlen from the consequences of what I was sure was her perfidy in sequestering the letter I had written to Philip Veritzen, telling him of his son's approaching marriage. I was armed with a knowledge born of long experience with my own husband and observation of the spouses of my friends.

Hugh lost no time in answering my signal. Hardly had the bell ceased tinkling beneath my fingers before he appeared in the doorway and strode toward me, stretching out his hands to help me up from the chair. But I shook my head and smiled at him.

"No, I am perfectly all right," I said, "perfectly able to walk. But I find I have to telephone again in a few minutes and it isn't worth while going in there and coming back again—that is if you don't mind."

"Mind!" he said explosively, and suddenly there was something in his eyes which made me drop mine. It was an expression which I had seen in them before in unguarded moments such as the present one. All his loyal, chivalric heart lay in those eyes for anyone to read.

HURTS HUGH

"Don't you know," he said huskily, "that it doesn't matter where in the world I am, so long as I can be near you and have the chance of serving you?"

I put my finger on my lips.

"Please," I whispered, "you must not say those things. I need your advice very much, so please do not make it impossible for me to stay here."

I had wounded him sorely. I saw that from the look in his eyes, and curiously enough there came to me at the same instant a remembrance of Edith Fairfax's mocking voice as she told me after her warning concerning "Floss" that "Dicky was pulling things" which would send me to Reno or the homicide court.

It was not fair, I told myself hotly, that I should wound as brave, as true a heart as ever beat beneath a man's coat, while Dicky went blithely on his way with no regard for my feelings or his own dignity.

With sudden contrition I reached out my hand and touched Hugh's sleeve.

"I did not mean to be so crass as that," I said. "I did not realize how it sounded. Please forgive me!"

Fashion Flashes

By ALICE ALDEN

Be comfortable at vacation resort dances and wear soft, simple things. A charming dance frock for such events is in white chiffon patterned all over with small black squares. Soft folds over the shoulders extend almost to the waistline, giving a deep decolletage. There is a red chiffon sash with trailing ends and a matching red hankie.

It may get monotonous, this question of black satin, so, if you're wise, you'll accent your black satin frock. A good model for early autumn wear is of black satin with inserts of matching white satin handblocked in a leaf design. Tiny satin ruffles mark the shoulderline.

Be nautical when it comes to summer shore clothes. A charming young girl wears a brock of white flannel, cut on sailor middy lines. It has a blue flannel collar with stars and the blue belt has front lacing which extends down the skirt. There is a white swagger coat.

We are in stitches as we continue to wear smart knitted suits. A new model has the blouse in dark yellow, the jacket in bottle green, and the skirt in checks combining the two colors. The coat features padded shoulders, box pleats on the sleeves and wooden buttons.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

Science Is Still Seeking the Cause of Eczema

Recently I told you about a number of disturbances of the skin and how they could be prevented and cured. Today, I want to tell you about another affliction of the skin, the cause of which is not known. I refer to the disease called "eczema," which is one of the most obstinate of skin disorders and extremely difficult to cure.

Dr. Copeland

Eczema is most commonly found in infants and growing children, but it is occasionally encountered in adults. Infants who suffer from this disagreeable affliction are a pathetic sight. The skin is red and covered with scabs and crusts which have a persistent watery discharge. This leads to intense itching and suffering. As a rule, the inflammation involves the face, hands and forearms.

Great advances have been made in the treatment of this unpleasant disease but, as I said, the underlying cause of the disorder has not as yet been discovered. It is more commonly found in infants who are bottle-fed, and is rarely encountered in children who are breast-fed. The disorder is believed to accompany some disturbance in digestion. There are authorities who think it is due to a peculiar type of sensitivity to certain foods in the diet of the sufferer.

The young victim of this annoying disturbance cries and scratches his skin in an effort to relieve the severe itching. For this reason it is advisable to place mittens or gloves on the hands of the child. This will prevent deep scratching of the skin and the danger of infecting it.

Mothers sometimes pin the sleeve of the sleeping garment to the crib so that the child is unable to scratch himself. I do not believe this practice is quite wise.

Bear in mind that even though eczema is a difficult disease to cure, it has been cured and can be cured. This is made possible only by careful study of the diet and the personal supervision of a physician. Too often the mother in her zealous attempt to cure her child resorts to the use of patent medicines and many salves recommended to her by well-meaning neighbors.

I want to impress upon you that a salve which is beneficial to one child may be irritative to another child. Skins vary in texture. Some are more sensitive than others. One medicine may prove to be mild for one person and too strong for another.

I am often asked by anxious mothers whether eczema is a contagious disease. Children often are humiliated and embarrassed when they notice that other children avoid them. There is no need for this because eczema is not contagious and cannot be transmitted from one child to another.

In older children eczema has been cured by the removal of localized infection somewhere in the body, such as diseased tonsils and adenoids. In others, when faulty elimination has been corrected this has led to the cure of the skin affliction. It is essential that the child receive a thorough physical examination in an effort to determine the underlying cause.

Do not neglect eczema or any other inflammation of the skin. Consult with your physician immediately. Neglect may lead to a chronic disease which is even more difficult to cure.

Be Sure Baby Understands

By CONSTANCE CAMERON

It is easy to forget how we felt in those days when we didn't know as many things as we do now. Because we can read a sign that says "Stop" or one that says, "Caution," we forget that there was a time when each was but a changing color, meaning exactly nothing to us.

Because we know as well as we know we're alive that two and two makes four, we grow impatient with little people to whom "two and two" are mere words.

Let us, every little while, try to go into the world of our children and see what we really mean to them, what our status to them really is. I think we shall emerge awed and weighed solemnly with the responsibility that the visit will give to us.

The children depend on us for food and clothing, for a home. They depend on us for a great deal more than that. It is a big world, even as far as the next corner is breath-taking, adventurous. The world is filled with furniture, legs, houses, cars, trees—all huge to the small person but a few feet from the ground. In this world he leans on someone, runs to someone for shelter and advice and information. That someone is usually mother, mother rather than father because she is with the child a greater part of the time.

Mother is the child's "Stop" or "Caution" or "Go" sign. That is something to think about. What would your reaction be if the sign said "Go" and you obeyed, only to be knocked down by an automobile? Resentment, rage, distrust. What about the child's reaction if you say "Go" thoughtlessly, eager to be free of interruption, and he comes a cropper with too many ice cream cones, too big a bump for a little fellow, too heart-breaking failure when your thoughtful "Caution" might have spared him?

What will his reaction be if, when you say "Caution" he does not understand your words, if you have not remembered that his vocabulary is limited and that he may not understand?

You are your child's only signal tower during his first years. That is a grave responsibility. Be true to your trust. Make your signs absolutely certain and safe. And be sure the child understands them.

Household Hints

Do not waste the top shelf of your oven when roasting. Potatoes will cook just as well in a saucepan in the oven, though they may take a little more time.

A straw placed through a hole in the center of a fruit tart will prevent the juice boiling over.

Put a handful of borax in the water when soaking men's overalls. It is a quick dirt softener, and will not harm the material.

Mint will keep fresh longer if washed in water to which a little bicarbonate of soda has been added.

GIANTS STRENGTHEN POSITION AT BUCS' EXPENSE

SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS

TENSE MOMENT AS GIANTS BEAT PIRATES...SCORE 2-1 IN EIGHTH...BASES FULL...TRAYNOR GROUNDS TO JACKSON AT THIRD...SINGLE WOULD HAVE DRIVEN IN TWO RUNS FOR VICTORY...HUBBELL SCORES TWENTY-FIRST TRIUMPH

High spot of yesterday's game ending the series between the Pirates and Giants at Forbes Field. It is a remarkable picture in that it shows every player on the field except the right fielder. Piet is rounding third, L. Waner second and P. Waner leaving first for the old "everybody goes" with two out as Traynor grounds to third, as per diagram. Any kind of a hit in this pinch would have meant two or three runs. Carl Hubbell is the New York pitcher. Picture by D. E. Benjamin, Sun-Telegraph photographer.

SPORT COMMENT

By James J. Long

Giant Victory Important.
Great Help to Morale.
Change in Ball Opposed.
Bush's Job Up to Self.
Grid Tongue-Twisters.
Ross After McLarnin.

TERRYS MAY NOT REQUIRE EVEN BREAK

IT WASN'T ONLY because the victory enabled them to leave town with the comfortable lead of six and a half games, whereas a defeat would have cut it to four and a half box scores, that the success of Carl Hubbell and his mates yesterday in capturing the final game of the big series here was tremendously helpful to the Giant pennant cause. The psychological effect possibly was even greater. The loss of four out five here and another defeat for Hubbell might have shaken the morale of the Terrymen. But escaping such a result, and with the pressure eased, the league leaders may be expected to continue their flag drive full of the fight and pep that is characteristic of the entire club under Bill Terry, with Blondy Ryan as the outstanding example.

Blondy Ryan

Mathematically, with their lead reduced by only one game during the hard fighting here during the last four days, the Giants were left sitting comfortably. They can lose two out of five games to the Reds, four out of six to the Cubs, two out of three to the Cardinals, two out of four to the Dodgers, two out of three to the Braves and one out of three to the Phillies, which means only 11 victories in their remaining 24 games, or less than an even break, and yet they will have a record of 90 wins against 64 defeats at the finish.

To beat out New York under such conditions it would be necessary for the Pirates to win 17 of their remaining 21 games, or for the Cubs to win 16 of the 19 games they have to play. The Giants would have to lose nine games more than Pittsburgh over the remainder of the route to make it possible for the Pirates to win out, or would have to lose 10 more than Chicago to enable the Cubs to finish in front.

AMERICAN LEAGUE WILL NOT CHANGE BALL

If there is to be a standard ball in the major loops next year, as advocated by some of the National League magnates, it will have to be the one now in use in the American League. That is, unless the club owners in the Harridge circuit change their present views, for a canvass of the junior body is said to have revealed that the moguls there are well satisfied with their 1933 pellet and will refuse to change.

Though the American League ball is not as dangerous as the jackrabbit of a few years ago, it is much livelier than the one used in the National. The cover is not so thick and the stitching not so heavy. American Leaguers insist that the extra hitting makes for a more popular game than the pitching duels so common to National League competition this year, and will hold out for the adoption of their own ball if a movement for a standard pill is launched. Magnates in the older circuit may propose a compromise that will bring in a ball about midway between the two types now in use.

GIANTS SEE RED SERIES AS BREATHER

Following two tough series in succession with the Braves and the Pirates, the Giants are hopeful of finding a breather in a Cincinnati engagement before their next hard string of six battles in four days with the Cubs in Chicago. Five games are booked in Redland, today's opener to be followed by a double header tomorrow and single games on Monday and Tuesday.

What may look like a soft spot in baseball sometimes turns out to be a pitfall, and the feeble Reds would not be contributing anything new to the history of the uncertain sport if they were to rise up and give the league leaders an unpleasant surprise party. So far this season, however, Donie

INJURIES PLAY HAVOC WITH DUKES' SQUAD

By JESS CARVER

If it isn't one thing with Frankie DeCoster, the leading quarterback hope at Duquesne, it's another, and the situation has Coach Elmer Layden about ready for the nut house.

DeCoster, who barks signals that can be heard for miles around, turned up with an infected foot when the Dukes opened their training sessions last week and became the team's first hospital case. His foot healed in o. k. fashion, and he was set to rejoin the varsity squad, when he developed a sore finger. The digit became infected and little Frankie is still hors de combat.

To make matters even worse, Jim McDonald, the husky halfback, turned up yesterday with a boil on his leg; Chick Martin injured his knee, and in yesterday morning's scrimmage, Dick Nussbaum, another halfback, pulled muscles over his ribs and is a patient in the school infirmary.

With the backfield in shambles, the fates might have adopted a hands-off policy as far as the line was concerned, but not so. Capt. Al Krankota, scrimmaging against the rough and tough freshman eleven, received a severe head and neck bump and he too has been ordered to take it easy.

Outside of that, and the fact that the opening game with Waynesburg's husky Yellow Jackets is less than a week away, Coaches Layden and Bach have nothing much over which to worry.

BOSTON, Sept. 9.—(AP.)—Billy Petrolle, the flashy Fargo Express, gave Sammy Fuller, Boston welterweight, an artistic boxing lesson in the Boston Garden's 10-round feature last night without impressing the two judges, whose votes resulted in the contest being declared a draw.

CARL HUBBELL CHECKS RUSH OF PIRATES

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

The tumult and the shouting of a great local baseball season seemed to have died down to a whisper today. The Giants have departed and with them went the Pirate pennant chances, in the opinions of most of our neighbors. The wasted runs made by the Buccos on the previous afternoon didn't do them a bit of good while facing the one and only Carl Hubbell yesterday, and while the league leaders won by the margin of one lone tally, the victory carried much flag significance. The score was 2 to 1.

The Buccos carried little spunk and no punch with Larry French out of the picture. True Hal Smith pitched like a champion and when nine innings had been reeled off the worst he deserved was a runless draw, yet the spirit so evident in the previous games of the series was missing in the game that carried so much weight. Had the Giants been licked they would have retreated from Pittsburgh in disorder, whereas they actually marched out of town like snappy soldiers looking for more worlds to conquer.

LOOK WHO'S HERE!

Oh, yes, the Dodgers are here today for a double-header, and they'll be here again Monday for another bargain bill, and, just a minute please, they will treat the Pirates to a double-decker at Brooklyn tomorrow. Six games in three days with an unpopular trip to Flatbush thrown in.

The Pirates are six and one-half games behind the Giants and are only a fraction of a decimal point ahead of the third-place Cubs as they face the big marathon with the Carey Clan. French and Swetonic are listed to face the Brooklyn boys today. The Dodgers have

SHIELDS, STOEFEN ADVANCE TO SEMI-FINALS

JACK CRAWFORD AND PERRY IN YANKS' PATH

FOREST HILLS, N. Y., Sept. 9.—(AP.)—American youth, represented by two young giants from California and New York, was arrayed today against two titans of international tennis in the semi-final stage of the United States men's singles championship.

Blond Lester Stoefen, of Los Angeles, occupied the "outsider's" role, filling the bracket originally slated for Ellsworth Vines, in a challenge to the court craft of Frederick J. Perry, England's Davis Cup hero.

SHIELDS MEETS CRAWFORD

Dark-haired Frank X. Shields, of New York, the man who has come back after the experts pronounced him through as a headliner, faced the resourceful Australian wizard, Jack Crawford, in the second semi-final.

Both foreign aces scored impressive straight-set victories in yesterday's quarter-finals, while Shields and Stoefen were carried to extra sets to eliminate a pair of countrymen.

Crawford trounced Clifford Sutter, of New Orleans, third ranking American player, 6-3, 6-3, 6-4, and Perry made quick work of Adrian Quist, of Australia, the same young Anzac who the previous day had trimmed Wilmer Allison. The scores were 6-4, 6-4, 6-0.

GRANT SUCCUMBS

Shields, still playing brilliantly but inclined to wildness in spots, turned back Gregory Mangin, of Newark, national indoor champion, 6-4, 6-4, 4-6, 6-3. Stoefen had his hands full beating Bryan Grant, Jr., the Atlanta star, in four sets. Grant, having tasted the heady wine of fame after his sensational win over Vines the previous day, ran both himself and his head-taller opponent almost into exhaustion before going down, 8-6, 6-4, 3-6, 7-5.

Morriss, Fuqua Win in Turin

TURIN, Italy, Sept. 9.—(AP.)—Johnny Morriss and Ivan Fuqua added two more titles yesterday to the United States total as they won their events in the international games before a capacity crowd in Mussolini Stadium.

Morriss, former star of Southwest Louisiana Institute, won the 110-meter high hurdles in the world record equalling time of 14.4 seconds while Fuqua, a student at the University of Indiana, dashed to an easy victory in the 400-meter race in 47.8 seconds, a new meet mark.

Babe Names Pirate Player On His All-Star Team

A member of the Pittsburgh Pirates is on Babe Ruth's all-star team for 1933, which will be published exclusively in Pittsburgh in the Sun-Telegraph tomorrow.

Can you guess this player's identity?

Can you guess the names of the pitchers who impress Babe as the best of the year?

It's a big, punchy article, and carries with it a list of all of the teams Babe has named in the 12 years he has been picking the all-stars.

Don't miss this big feature. You'll find it only in your favorite sports pages, those of the

PITTSBURGH SUN-TELEGRAPH

Long's Sport Comment

Bush's men have not caused much trouble for the Giants, having won only four out of 17 games.

BUSH CAN RETAIN JOB IF HE DESIRES

Speaking of the Reds, it is learned from pretty good authority that whether or not there will be a change in the managership of the club next year depends entirely on the will of Donie Bush. The former Pirate skipper, it is understood, can stay right on the job in Cincinnati for 1934 if he desires to do so.

Donie Bush

Baseball men in general admit that no manager could have done any better than Bush has done this year with such a poor hitting outfit as the Reds, who have scored fewer runs than any other team in the big show and whose club batting average of only .244 is the lowest in either of the major leagues. Sidney Weil and Bush are in perfect harmony, and it is said the owner has no desire to make a managerial change if Donie will consent to stay. Bush has not made known his feelings on the subject, and probably will not reach a decision until the season is over.

GRID NAMES MEAN WOE TO RADIO BOYS

Early football rosters show the usual large percentage of unpronounceable names that can't fail to cause the broadcasters many a headache. A few years ago Notre Dame had an end named George Vlk. Every time the radio announcer at the field took a pull out of his vacuum bottle of coffee, the listening fans thought that Vlk had stopped another play. The player almost made all-America because of it.

Pitt claims a name that will give announcers and proofreaders plenty to wrestle with during the 1933 season. The name is Stanley Olejnicsak, and it belongs to a tackle hailing from Bellaire, O. But it isn't as tough as it looks when Stan explains that his last name is pronounced as if spelled O-leeni-sik, with the accent on the "ni." To go along with this, the Panthers have Wojcihovski, Shedlosky, Nicksick and a few others.

ROSS CRAVES CHANCE AGAINST M'LARNIN

Win or lose when he defends his world lightweight title against Tony Canzoneri in New York next Tuesday night, Barney Ross will desire, above any other bout that can be arranged for him, a match with Jimmy McLarnin, the welterweight titleholder.

It would mean the giving away of a lot of weight by Ross, but Barney says he wouldn't mind that a bit. He is willing to spot McLarnin 10 pounds by coming in at 135 pounds and letting Jimmy weigh up to the welter limit of 147, and hopes that some promoter will succeed very soon in inducing McLarnin to accept.

DEFEATS OF JEWISH BOYS PROMPT DEFI

The reason for the eagerness of Ross to get a crack at McLarnin is to be found in the record that the welterweight champion has made against Jewish fighters. Jimmy has been poison to Jewish opponents in the ring ever since he was a bantamweight in 1925, when he flattened Jackie Fields in two rounds. A year later he put the crusher on Joey Sangor in the third frame, and in 1928 he made his first trip east of the Rockies and stopped Louis (Kid) Kaplan in the eighth round of a Chicago meeting.

Jimmy McLarnin

In New York in 1928, McLarnin put Sid Terris away in the first stanza, and in 1929 he knocked out Joe Glick and Ruby Goldstein, each in the second round. In 1930, Jimmy kept it up by rocking Al Singer to sleep in the third chapter. Something had to be done about it, the East Side resolved, so Benny Leonard was induced to make a comeback for the express purpose of putting McLarnin in his place. It was a futile undertaking, however, and Leonard got such a beating that the referee halted the proceedings in the seventh round. Now Ross is out to avenge McLarnin's long string of Jewish victims and declares that if he gets the match he seeks the last laugh will be at Jimmy's expense.

BUCS CHECKED BY HUBBELL

Mungo and Carroll available for duty.

The 6,000 fans who heard the New York swan song yesterday will testify to the statement here that no runs should have crossed the plate in the duel between Hubbell and Smith.

NO RUNS DESERVED

Pie Traynor's wide throw of Moore's infield hit in the third inning opened the way for the first tally. The Giants scored their winning run in the seventh, but while this marker goes into the record as being "earned," the runner should not have been on the bases.

Fred Lindstrom, a big star against his mates throughout the long campaign, failed to get Davis' fly to left at the start of the seventh. Lindy had been switched to the left pasture in the middle of the game owing to Jensen's lame leg. Fred had time to haul in the loft, but he failed to do so and Mancuso and Ryan furnished a sacrifice and a long fly to score Davis.

The Giants trimmed the Pirates 13 times in the 22 battles of the long race.

His twenty-first victory netted Carl Hubbell a $500 bonus.

The Pirates have recalled Bill Brubaker, third baseman, from the Toronto Club of the International League and he will report next week.

The string of 22 consecutive victories boasted by Teddy Movan, star 147-pound amateur boxer, of the McKeesport A. C., has been snapped. BRUINS TIED WITH BUCS

Associated Press.

While the Pittsburgh Pirates this week have been striving in vain to whittle an appreciable amount from the lead of the New York Giants in the National League pennant race, the Chicago Cubs have been making considerable hay and today are in a virtual tie for second place with the Pirates.

The Cubs gained their second place tie by battering Ben Cantwell, Leo Mangum and their successors for a dozen hits, while Guy Bush pitched steadily, beating Boston, 8-3. It was their fifth straight victory and their forty-seventh in 62 home games so far.

The fourth-place St. Louis Cardinals swept their series with the Phillies by winning, 6 to 5, despite Chuck Klein's twenty-seventh homer. Silas Johnson, Cincinnati pitcher, finally found the victory he had been seeking since May 26, holding Brooklyn to six hits to win, 12 to 6.

Washington's Senators maintained their 8½-game lead in the American League of walloping the hapless Chicago White Sox, 11 to 2, to give Al Crowder his twenty-second mound victory. The Yankees kept pace by beating the St. Louis Browns, 5 to 3.

Jimmy Foxx's forty-second home run of the season and Sugar Cain's six-hit flinging aided the Athletics to a 9-2 victory over the Indians. The Detroit Tigers took two decisions from the Boston Red Sox, each 4 to 3.

LUTHER SCORES EASY VICTORY AT OAKMONT

By TOM BIRKS

Ted Luther, of the Valley Hights Country Club, tri-state professional champion, flashed two of the greatest consecutive rounds ever played over the famous Oakmont course yesterday and won the Oakmont professional invitation tournament. He had 72-73—145, one shot over par, for the 36 holes.

The tournament, bringing into play all of the leading professionals in Western Pennsylvania, was just a breeze for the likeable pro from Valley Heights. His nearest competitor was Pete O'Hara, of the Westmoreland Country Club, with 76-77—153.

THREE IN TIE

Ernie Jacobs, greenskeeper at Castle Shannon; Sam Parks, Jr., of South Hills, and Toots Erath, of Edgewood, were tied for third, each having a total of 155. Vincent Eldred, the West Penn open champion, played himself into the last money place with a 157.

Henry C. Fownes, president of the Oakmont Club, sponsored the tourney, and was presented a silver platter by the tri-state professionals as a token of their esteem.

LALLY WINS TITLE

Francis Lally, after trying for many years to corral the elusive city championship, finally wrote his name on the trophy yesterday when, in the final round of the tourney, he defeated Mike Galido, defending champion, 6 and 5.

In his march to the title he was forced to eliminate three former titleholders, including Carl Kauffmann.

Miss Virginia Doyle and Miss Laura Childs, two young representatives of the host club, will be first to tee off in the qualifying round of the annual championship tournament of the Women's Golf Association of Western Pennsylvania at the Allegheny Country Club next Monday, the pairings and starting times, announced today, reveal.

Misses Doyle and Childs will tee off at 9:42 a. m., and will be followed at intervals of six minutes by 74 other niblick wielders who hope to gain a place in the championship flight.

CHAMPION OUT

Mrs. S. F. Wadsworth, of Oakmont, is the defending champion, but does not intend to play. Match play will be begun on Tuesday, and the tournament will be concluded on Friday. The pairings and starting times:

9:42—Virginia Doyle and Laura Childs.
9:48—Mrs. W. J. Lacock and Mrs. Carl Vandervoort.
9:54—Bertha Brooks and Nancy Doyle.
10:06—Mrs. W. G. Livingston and Harriet C. Baximer.
10:00—Mrs. W. G. Livingston and Harriet Ramsburg.
10:12—Mary McCune and Rachel McCormick.
10:18—Lindsay Boyd and Gretchen Warmcastle.

STARS ADVANCE IN LOCAL NET TOURNEY

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Quarter-final competition features this afternoon's bill in the third Allegheny Country Club invitation turf court men's doubles tourney. Semi-final frays grace the schedule for tomorrow morning with wind-up listed for 2 o'clock.

Favored arrays continued progress throughout yesterday's session wherein six tussels were disposed of. B. F. Arkle and Wright Hugus, crack Wheeling pair who recently annexed the Western Maryland dual crown, defeated Chuck and Jimmy Arensberg, 6-3, 6-1.

Dave Devlin and Junior Kunkle, Westmonters and premiers of Southern Pennsylvania, overcame Frank McClintock and Frank White, 6-3, 2-6, 6-3, and thereby earned the right to meet Tom Robinson and Stan Brown of Fox Chapel. Billy O'Loughlin and Wally Arensberg accounted Hub Rinehart and Don Mattern, 6-4, 6-4. Ralph Bald and Bob Grier were halted by Bob Schmertz and King Moore, 3-6, 6-3, 6-1.

Frnak Broida and Irvin Goodman, second of the secret group, carried too many close-range guns for E. A. Knoche and Carlton Hughes, giant Stantonians, and prevailed at 6-3, 6-3. John Brown and Eddie Alcorn cared for the home clubbers, Joe Holmes, Jr., and J. C. Moorehead, 6-3, 6-1.

The semi-final Allegheny Mountains men's singles titular fracas billed specially here this afternoon between B. F. Arkle and Eddie Alcorn has been rebooked for next Friday. The postponed final engagements of the Mountain event have been set for Sunday, September 17, at the Westmont Tennis Club, Johnstown.

BASEBALL COMEDY

By NICK ALTROCK

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—Back almost 30 years ago, when Uncle Nick was young and handsome, like Brigham and Adonis, respectively, I was pitching on a Chicago team they called the Hitless Wonders. Those Chisox of ours weren't batting the size of their shoes, but we could always manage to squeeze out a win on a passed ball, a foul and a bunt. And we won the pennant.

Nick Altrock

Well, I am not nailing the National League gonfalon on the Boston Braves, but they have sure gone places for a team with a batting average that reads more like Bryn Mawr or Vassar than the big league.

The formula of the Braves' success is their defense. When the other club is at bat, the Boston outfit is tighter than a Pullman car window and they fight like Lexington, Concord and Bunker Hill rolled into one. And I wouldn't be surprised if Paul Revere was even giving 'em the signals from the old North Church tower. Proving that the Braves have got the Spirit of 1776, even if they're only batting .249.

Anderson Sees Fine Season In Big Ten

By HEARTLY W. (HUNK) ANDERSON
Notre Dame Football Coach

The 1933 football season promises to be especially spectacular in the middle west. The Big Ten has furnished fans with some great races in recent years with Michigan and Purdue holding the spotlight lately.

There is no reason to believe that Coach Harry Kipke at Michigan and Coach Noble Kizer at Purdue will not have great teams again this fall. Michigan, the 1932 Conference champion is raising a big hue and cry over the loss of Harry Newman, a truly great quarterback. But it is my observation that this fuss is only a blind to cover up prospects for a fine team.

Hunk Anderson

Newman will be missed, but Kipke will inaugurate a "share-the-work" plan and will have four men in his backfield providing the threat that was invested in Newman alone last year. Michigan will be in there, playing for the breaks, with a team that can capitalize when the breaks come.

KIZER MAKES PROGRESS

Noble Kizer is to be congratulated on the fine job he has been doing at Purdue since he played for Notre Dame Four Horsemen in 1924. He also is to be congratulated for his recent advancement to the position of athletic director. He has the personal capabilities and the material for a fine team this fall.

His most serious losses by graduation are Roy Horstmann, fullback; Paul Moss, end, and John Oehler, center. He lost 10 other lettermen. The other side of the story is that he has 17 lettermen back and a large group of minor lettermen, reserves and sophomores.

In four years Purdue has won 30 games, lost three and tied one. Kizer was head coach during three of those years. This year he will feature one of the heaviest and fastest backfields in the country. Paul Bardonner, quarterback, weighs 185; Fred Hecker, fullback, weighs nearly 200; Duane Purvis, left halfback, weighs more than 200, and im Carter, left halfback, is over the 180 mark. All of them can kick, pass, run, block and take care of their defensive duties. If Kizer, a master of line play, can whip together the forwards these backs deserve. Purdue will win all its games, including the one at Notre Dame, November 11.

TWO 'DARK HORSES'

Minnesota and Northwestern are the "dark horses" in the conference this year, the former with a typically big, strong, husky roster, consisting mainly of veteran material, and Northwestern with a group of sophomores in the line and veterans in the backfield who will average well over 200 pounds.

Dick Hanley, at Northwestern, admits he has great prospects, and when you can get him to make such a confession, it should be a danger signal for the rest of the conference. Wisconsin, under Dr. Spears, is more formidable than it has been for many seasons. Ohio State is another strong possibility which, if it can't win the championship, can possibly settle it by beating a strong contender.

Indiana will be typically rugged and willing, but hasn't the class. Illinois should be better than it was last year, but Coach Bob Zuppke hasn't a world-beater yet. Chicago and Iowa should also improve this year under their new coaches, Ossie Solem, at Iowa, and Clark Shaughnessy, at Chicago. But neither has the necessary material.

W. P. I. A. L. GRID BOARD IN SESSION

By JULIUS LEVIN

The decisions committee of the Western Pennsylvania Interscholastic Athletic League is holding a meeting at the Fort Pitt Hotel today to discuss eligibility complaints and other matters pertaining to the football season.

The decisions committee is composed of B. B. Smith, of Connellsville; F. C. Gillespie, of Duquesne; D. H. Stewart, of Beaver; W. C. Evans, of Scott High, and H. W. Crane, of Monongahela.

TO DISCUSS FEES

One of the important questions up for discussion is the recommendation for a standard set of prices for football officials. The school heads favor $10 for class AA games, $7.50 for class A games and $5 for class B games.

Three football games are scheduled for district scholastic teams today. Braddock plays Strong Vincent in Erie, while Monaca and Apollo engage alumni aggregations.

A touchdown in the final quarter, scored with only four minutes left to play, enabled Johnny Reed's Scott High eleven, of North Braddock, to defeat Uniontown, 6 to 0, under the lights at North Braddock last night.

J. GROSS SCORES

Halfback J. Gross plunged the ball over from the four-yard stripe on an off-tackle smash after the ball had been worked into position by a series of line bucks. Scott outplayed Uniontown throughout, and had the ball close to the Uniontown goal as the first half ended.

E. Gros, star Scott fullback, suffered a knee injury in the first quarter and was forced out of the game. The lineup:

SCOTT—6		UNIONTOWN—0.
H. Furguson	L. E.	Gowesky
Goff	L. T.	Ronco
Strang	L. G.	Hartman
Andreko	C.	Trickett

Backe	R. E.	Burns
A.	Q. B.	Renninger
Stell	L. H.	De Carbo
J. Gross	R. H.	Julian

Score by quarters:

Substitutions—Scott: Merkoesky, Buba, Aronos, Balent, Stark. Uniontown: James. Touchdown—J. Gross. Referee—Red Friesell. Umpire—Carl Rebele. Head linesman—Joe Gannon. Time of quarters—12 minutes.

BRADDOCK IN TIE

ERIE, Pa., Sept. 9.—The Braddock and Strong Vincent High School football teams battled to a 6-6 deadlock here last night, opening the local scholastic football season.

Strong Vincent took the lead by scoring in the second quarter when Deplasido took a 20-yard pass from Bell. Braddock tied the count in the final period, J. Marshall plunging over from the three-yard line. The score:

S. VINCENT—6.		BRADDOCK—6.

STOCK MARKET DULL, SHADE HIGHER

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—Resumption of Saturday dealings on the stock exchange drew but a faint response from the trading fraternity today. Intervals occurred between the printing of stockk quotations on the ticker tape. Prices were generally unchanged to a shade higher. Alcohols edged forward slightly.

Union Pacific recovered a point of yesterday's sharp drop, while American Commercial Alcohol and American Telephone each gained major fractions. Equities steady to minor fractions higher included American Can, U. S. Steel, Dome, Commercial Solvents, New York Central, Case, Standard Oil of New Jersey, Chrysler and General Motors. Goodyear and Santa Fe were a trifle lower.

The eyes of Wall street, while still watching closely for signs of currency inflation, were not neglecting the encouraging implications of increasing employment and the steadily growing volume of retail buying which is being reported from various parts of the United States.

Week-end trade reviews stress the fact that higher prices in a number of categories, due to the application of NRA codes and other factors, apparently have not made any great impression on the renewal of retail demand. The "buy now" movement, as an aid to the recovery program, it is said, is being felt by merchants in virtually all lines of goods.

Followers of the oil shares were awaiting with much interest the scheduled conference Monday at Washington between President Roosevelt and Harold L. Ickes, Secretary of the Interior and acting oil administrator. While there has been a wide divergence of opinion in the industry as to the method which may be adopted by the administration in applying its price-fixing powers, sentiment now is apparently more optimistic than when the code arguments first started.

The dollar continued to improve in foreign exchange transactions. The British pound sterling was off 1⅞ cents at $4.52 1/8, French francs sagged .07½ of a cent at 5.50½ cents and the other European gold currencies were heavy.

OIL CODE STUDY TO START

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—(AP.)—A first-hand study of the adaptation of the twelve billion dollar oil industry to government supervision under an NRA code, along with the question of price regulation, will be taken up Monday by President Roosevelt and his chief recovery aides.

The President arranged for the conference as the industry slowed down production throughout the nation for the experiment of controlling oil's flow to lift prices and to conserve a natural resource.

Mr. Roosevelt will talk over adaptation of the petroleum business to the general recovery campaign with Secretary Ickes, the oil administrator, Hugh S. Johnson, the industrial administrator, Interior Department officials and Federal members of oil's planning and co-ordinating committee.

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 9.—Standard Oil Company of California has made a sale of bunker oil to Standard Oil Company of New Jersey understood to amount to about 5,000,000 barrels. The price was not divulged but is reported to be around 60 cents a barrel.

SETBACK GIVEN TO GRAINS

CHICAGO, Sept. 9.—Material setbacks in grain values early today followed advices of moisture relief in Argentina. The rains were chiefly in Pampas Province, Sante Fe and Cordoba provinces, where drought has been worst, were still dry. Opening 7/8-1 7/8 lower, wheat afterward held near the initial limits. Corn started at ½-1½ decline, and subsequently sagged further.

Gas Price Fight On Coast Taken To High Court

OLYMPIA, Wash., Sept. 9.—(AP.)—Gov. Clarence D. Martin's legal battle against what he calls "unreasonable gasoline prices" was carried to the State Supreme Court today.

A notice of appeal was filed in the Thurston County Superior Court by W. H. Pemberton, state supervisor of inheritance taxes, who instituted court action against 17 oil companies at the request of the Governor.

Gasoline prices in the state generally now are 25½, 23½ and 20½ cents a gallon.

The complaint charges the oil companies with conspiring to exercise a monopolistic control over gasoline prices.

RAIL LOAN O. K.'D BY ROOSEVELT

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—(AP.)—President Roosevelt is ready to give the railroads a loan from the public works funds for the purchase of steel rails as soon as the price is reduced by the steel industry.

The proposal has received the favor of the carriers but the administration still must talk to the steel leaders about cutting the rates on the rails which the government contends have been maintained at a high level while other prices were falling.

A report from the Interstate Commerce Commission complaining against the rail prices has been referred to the Department of Justice, but there is no indication that the government is going to take any legal action.

This is a new use for the public works funds which the President intends to restrict henceforth to construction of self-liquidating propositions.

GLASS DEMAND HOLDS FIRM

Demand for glass and glass products holds a firm tone in the consuming market, according to American Glass Review. Production has not changed materially during the week. With some classes increases in output can be expected in the immediate future while other lines, following a seasonal course, will see a let-up in schedules.

Declines are most apparent in those factories which have been devoting the bulk of their attention to the manufacture of glass containers for home packing. However, the reversing trend has not been as sudden with these products as it was in recent years, and before long the call for proprietary and prescription ware will offer much to take up what slack may appear in the meantime.

The momentum accompanying fall activity in glass tableware circles is getting under way. Meanwhile, most varieties of flat glass continue in good call. Demand for bottles and containers generally shows signs of easing down from the preserving season high at this time and 1933 is no exception.

BANK RESERVES PILE UP

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—(AP.)—Excess reserves of reporting member banks continue to mount, and are now approaching a level considered by the Treasury to be unwieldy.

Recent estimates place the total in the approximate amount of $600,000,000, more than half of which is held by member banks in the central reserve cities of New York and Chicago.

The latest condition report of member brokers showed excess reserves of $149,000,000 in New York City as of the close ofo business September 6, occasioned by reserves of $847,000,000 as compared with requirements of $698,000,000.

At Chicago the reserves were $313,000,000 as of the same date, whereas but $136,000,000 was needed, resulting in an excess of $177,000,000.

Georgia Supports Tobacco Program

ATLANTA, Sept. 9.—(AP.)—A proclamation calling upon Georgia tobacco farmers to join in a 1934 acreage reduction program was issued yesterday by Gov. Eugene Talmadge after conferring by telephone with the governors of North Carolina and South Carolina on a federal relief program.

German Ocean Lines United by Merger

BERLIN, Sept. 9.— (INS.)—Merger of the Hamburg-American and North German Lloyd lines, placing both under a single directorship, was announced last night.

Passenger and freight service to the United States, Canada and the Gulf of Mexico are affected. The merger was effected for reasons of economy.

Cotton Control Approved by Roosevelt

WASHINGTON, Sept. 9.—(AP.)—A cotton production control program for 1934 and 1935 has been approved by President Roosevelt and its outlines are expected to be announced today or early next week by Secretary Wallace.

Two main features of the plan include crop reduction for next year to around 25,000,000 acres and a virtual guarantee of parity price to the grower on a portion of his cotton.

STEEL OUTPUT DIPS TO JUNE LEVEL

By B. E. V. LUTY

The American Iron and Steel Institute reports steel ingot production in August at 49.42 per cent of capacity, against 58.95 per cent in July and 45.96 per cent in June. Weekly estimates made during July and August totaled much the same as the official total for the two months, but were somewhat too low for July and too high for August. There was a great bulge and the high level was reached sooner than appraised, while the decline began earlier. A careful plotting to arrive at weekly rates conforming to the official showing places the week ended September 2 at about 40 per cent, while this week may be estimated at about 38 per cent.

In the great ascent in steel production from a rate of 14 per cent at the middle of March, resulting from the banking crisis, to a rate of 60 per cent in the week ended July 15, a rate of approximately 38 per cent was attained at the beginning of June. While the recent descent to this rate may seem somewhat disturbing, it is recalled that on June 1 the steel industry was regarded as doing very well indeed, and it was prognosticated that if there were any of the usual summer recessions it would be a very mild affair. Instead, production increased by more than one-half, reaching its high point at the very time when by precedent the rate should be the lowest of the year.

MARKET HELD BACK

The steel market has not yet been put in full running order as rigid compliance with the code, with base prices filed by individual producers under it, and general regulations to be promulgated by the American Iron and Steel Institute as to differentials, extras, definitions, etc., is necessary to avoid fines for price cutting. The government can impose a fine up to $500 for a transaction, and the institute $10 a ton. The regulations are not all approved by the institute as yet, while sales departments must familiarize themselves with details and salesmen must be educated.

The difficulties have not greatly impeded the transaction of current business, because this is largely against contracts in force when the code became effective as President Roosevelt signed it in the evening of August 19.

Base prices as filed August 29 were only or the remainder of the quarter, but from time to time one steel product or another has been opened for fourth quarter, at the original prices. An exception is strips, new prices for which were filed September 6, to become effective September 16 in accordance with the 10-day stipulation of the code. Hot rolled strips are advanced $2 a ton to 1.75c and cold rolled $3 to 2.40c. For harmony blue annealed sheets, 10 gauge, are advanced $2 a ton to 1.90c. These advances are expected to stimulate specifying against contracts about to expire.

RAILS BACKWARD

Some of the extra steel made and shipped during the bulge remains in mill form in the hands of distributors and manufacturing consumers, while some has passed into semi-manufactures and manufactures not yet in actual ultimate consumption, the activity having been in anticipation of higher prices for steel and higher costs in working it up. In the last few weeks the extra production has come off and the question now is how much liquidation or reduction of stocks there may be, whereby temporarily the line of steel production would run under the line of actual ultimate consumption as previously it had been above it.

Actual ultimate consumption of steel is probably at a somewhat higher rate than in June, but the fact is not visible because it is impossible to follow all steel into actual consumption. Even the automobile industry completely out of its usual seasonal swing, is producing nearly as heavily as in June.

While there has been some accumulations of steel and steel products, largely to be liquidated, this is an insignificant fraction of the arrearages in steel that accumulated for two years or more, in repair and upkeep work being neglected. Even recently there has been no more than necessary repair work, nothing being done in anticipation of long range increase in general activity.

The railroads are a conspicuous instance as even with increasing traffic they have thus far fallen short of buying steel on even a moderate scale. The steel trade thinks that soon Washington will follow its recent suggestions to railroads that there be more spending with actual pressure and definite assistance, which would help the steel industry greatly. The federal building program, on the other hand, does not seem any nearer than two months ago to furnishing tonnage for the mills.

Wholesale and Jobbing Trade Conditions

NEW YORK, Sept. 8.—(AP)—Tabloid review of business reported by Dun-Bradstreet in the four divisions of wholesale and jobbing, retail trade, manufacturing and industry and collections this week compared with the corresponding period last year. Good (G) means above; fair (F) equal to; quiet (Q); slow (S) below last year; active (A).

Philadelphia	G	G	A	G
Pittsburgh	G	G	A	G

Pittsburgh—Retail trade somewhat quieter this week after the heavy sales prior to the Labor Day holidays. Department store sales in August higher than in July and widely above those for August, 1932. Industrial operations lower, because of lighter demand for steel products. Manufacturers of electric refrigerators still active. August production of plate glass larger than in July. Production of bituminous coal 50 per cent higher than in same week of 1932.

ROLE OF BANKS IN RECOVERY PUZZLING

By LEWIS HANEY,
Professor of Economics, New York University.

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—The part which the banks should play in our recovery experiment is probably one of the most difficult to decide. This question was bound to come up at the present time.

We all know that credit has been a major factor in our business affairs. Its abuse was apparent in the boom. Most of the attempts to bring recovery have involved schemes to liquidize frozen credit or to stimulate the use of more credit.

ESSENTIAL TO CREDIT

But the banks are the chief machines of business credit. Even government credit requires the aid of banks. So most plans to stimulate business come to the banks sooner or later.

The fact is that most of the banks today are in what would ordinarily be called a good liquid condition. There are still a good many which have not recovered from the crash, but the reporting member banks of the reserve system show large deposits in comparison with loans, and great excess reserves. Money rates are very low.

Yet bank loans have expanded relatively little. They have not kept pace with deposits or with the recent spurt in business.

So we now find the NRA in a critical attitude, and trying to force the banks to "loosen up."

ARGUMENT FOR CREDIT

A good many manufacturers and merchants have accumulated inventories, and the higher prices and costs which have been caused by government policies make them want more credit. Some, too, want to buy goods in anticipation of higher prices, which requires credit.

The government argues that credit should be extended to enable business men to carry inventories pending the hoped-for increase in consumer buying. It also thinks that more credit in the shape of bank loans would help to stimulate business.

But the bankers reply that they know their business. They say that they have every incentive to make loans, and are doing so in all cases in which the loan is reasonably safe.

They consider their first duty is to their depositors and that if they make unsafe loans, depositors will suffer losses.

INFLATION OBSTACLE

They ask how loans can be safe when there is a probability or even a possibility that the value of the loan would be reduced by inflation so that the borrower would not return as much purchasing power as was lent to him.

And they ask why, if the NRA is an experiment, they should risk the depositors' money in backing it?

To this the government officials reply that there are ample bank resources, and that banks should play a positive part in putting NRA over. They should seek to stimulate business by going after loans more freely.

R. F. C. FACTOR

Indeed, it seems that some officials are threatening that if loans are not made by banks as they desire, the government will itself go into the banking business to an even greater extent. The old R. F. C. is coming into the picture again by encouraging the weaker banks to issue preferred stock which the government would buy, thus giving the issuing banks more funds to lend.

So the matter stands. My only suggestion is that we should remember that credit is not capital. Credit is a debt secured by a promise to pay, the goodness of which depends upon the use to which pre-existing capital is put. The question is, who is the best judge of that?

Investment Counsel—Racket or Boon To Thrifty?

—By GEORGE H. SNYDER—

This is the final article of a series discussing the rise of investment counselors, their value to investors, and the weaknesses threatening this form of investment service.

WOULD YOU, as an individual, want the job of being an expert on railroads, public utilities, steel, rubber, textiles, copper, shoes, airplanes, chain stores, electrical equipment, lumber and perhaps a dozen more industries? Along with this would you like the additional job of being an expert on political affairs, on municipal and government finance, on foreign exchange and the effect that the NRA will have on individual industries?

This would be a large order to fill. There may be individuals capable of acquiring an expert knowledge of all these affairs, but it certainly is beyond the range of average human intelligence. The writer of this column has devoted 13 years to the study of finance but he does not pretend to be an expert on all the fields mentioned. Merely to touch the high spots requires more than the 40-hour week about which we have heard so much.

CITY SUED FOR PIPE LINE COST

Suit has been filed against the city by Mike Manella, contractor, alleging the city owes him $28,605 for extra work in laying a water pipe line to the South Side and which the city disputes.

Manella says that while laying the line in the bed of the Monongahela River he faced two floods, erroneous calculations by the city and other conditions.

However, he claims that Director Edward G. Lang of the Department of Public Works, directed him to do the work as speedily as possible, which he says he did, much of which was done during the cold winter of 1929.

Manella claims that the sum for which he wants payment was for work required to remove, repair and relay the line over and above the work provided in the contract.

Officer Tells Durant About Murder of Girl

CHAPTER III.

So the general public thought he was a miracle worker, eh? They thought he was so great a lawyer that juries were twisted in his hands. Little Sue was smarter than the rest of them; she knew that it wasn't knowledge of law or evidence that made him successful; it was his talent for finding out the truth. Well, he'd exercise that talent now.

Layton brought him his hat. He looked anxiously at his master. "You're helping Miss Sue, sir?" he asked.

"Naturally."

"I knew you would. You won't drink today, will you, sir?"

Durant smiled. "I can't say. I shall postpone it as long as I can."

"You could postpone it forever if you wanted to," said the valet. "I sort of hoped, sir, seeing Miss Sue come here, that you'd feel — well, that you'd stop."

"Do you know, Layton," said Durant, "the mere fact that you named your son after me doesn't give you the right to be impertinent? There are times when I wish you had less affection for me and more understanding of your place."

"Yes, sir; yes, sir," said the valet.

Durant looked at the man's white face. He suddenly slapped the valet heavily between the shoulders. "That's all right; forget it, Layton. If you are interested enough to talk about it, I guess I'm pretty bad. Well, I'll tell you something. I won't be drunk until Siddall is free —or sitting in the chair."

"Is there much danger of that, sir?" gasped the valet.

"What do you think prosecution for murder is? Contract bridge for prizes? There's plenty of danger. That makes the case interesting," he added. He was smiling as he descended in the elevator to the street.

Synopsis

Jackson Durant has won socially unpleasant fame as an underworld lawyer and has been jilted by Sue Leonard, a pretty society girl. He has been drowning his sorrow. Layton, his faithful valet, has been politely remonstrating with him, stressing the evil of excessive drinking. Durant reads in the afternoon papers of the murder of Mimi Montagne, Broadway night club singer, for which Thomas Siddall, wealthy young broker, has been arrested. Durant's former fiancee calls and pleads with him to defend Siddall to whom she is now engaged. Durant agrees to help save "Tommy." He phones Tony Gazotti, whom he had defended successfully on a homicide charge recently, and makes an appointment to meet him.

Now Go On

Policeman Waiting

Morosini, whose Latin name had become Gaelic in the prize ring—"Young Morrisey" had seemed a good nom de guerre—himself admitted Durant to the speakeasy on Forty-third street. In the days when Jackson Durant had been merely a corporation lawyer, of distinguished family and an elastic purse, Morosini's greeting had always been respectfully warm. Now it was respectfully effusive. The man who had saved Tony Gazotti from the chair rated the highest attention.

"The Loot is waiting for you, Mr. Durant. I put him in a booth. If you want more privacy there's a room upstairs."

"With a dictaphone in it?" Durant smiled.

"You bet your life there is," surprisingly admitted Morosini. "Any time a friend of mine goes into conference with a bull I have someone listening in. Coppers are coppers, you know, and you never can tell what tale one of them will tell."

"The booth will do," said Durant. "And I don't want anyone listening."

"Oke with me," said the speakeasy owner. "You'll find Stevens over there." He pointed to a booth and Durant proceeded to it. Save for the fact that there were tables in the center of the long narrow room, it was very much like walking down the aisle of a Pullman car. The booths resembled the seats in a train except that the backs were higher.

Asks for Information

Lieut. Stevens, of the Homicide Squad, looked at Durant over a glass of beer. "Greetings," he said, and drained the glass.

Durant sat down. He looked inquiringly at the police officer.

"Same thing," said Stevens. "I never touch the hard stuff when I'm on duty."

"A mug of beer and a bottle of ginger ale," Durant told the hovering waiter.

Stevens' eyes widened. "Water wagon?"

"For a while," said Durant. "Steve, I want the low-down on the Montagne-Siddall affair."

The lieutenant shrugged. "It's one of those things," he said. "Wide open. Of course, with the family and the money Siddall has, you never can tell. But if I were making book on it I'd lay eight to five Siddall gets the chair. I don't see how he can duck it."

He sipped the beer which the waiter brought and scrutinized Durant interestedly.

"Where do you come in?" he asked. "If you're defending him, my meeting you this way doesn't look so good."

"We met because you wanted my advice about putting two thousand dollars in a show," said Durant.

"Now how the hell did you know that I was sprouting wings?" demanded the lieutenant.

Durant smiled. "You were on the Broadway Squad five years, weren't you? Since then you still chum around with a Broadway gang. If you haven't angeled a show already, you must be about ripe."

"Bull's-eye," admitted the officer.

"And without knowing the name of the show's backer, or who's in it, my advice is to put the dough in government bonds. And having cleared you from any future questioning, give me the case against Siddall. I'm not asking you to disclose any secret evidence. Just tell me what will be in the newspapers tomorrow morning."

"Lay off this one," advised Stevens. "I was wrong on the odds. It's a hundred to one, and a young miracle worker like you doesn't want to get tied up with a sure loser."

"I'm not his lawyer. But I'm interested. What's the case?"

Tells About Party

Stevens finished his glass of beer. Durant signaled the waiter and another glass was brought. The officer leaned back comfortably in his seat.

"Jim Crelliman was throwing a party at his penthouse. Ike Dolan, who is Crelliman's partner in several rackets, was there with his wife. Joe McCann, the big beer boy, was there with his hotsie, Fi Dollard, and two other girls who do the best they can, Maria Dusselman and Gertie Waxted, rounded out a nice respectable group. Why, if you believe me, there wasn't one in the bunch that had ever been convicted of anything worse than manslaughter. I'm leaving out the fair Mimi.

"Well, it was a quiet dinner. You know the kind: a little chat about technocracy, the foreign debts, the scandalous way the younger generation carries on. Well, anyway, the gang had a late dinner. When the phonograph wasn't going, the radio was. All innocence and good clean fun. Maze McCann didn't offer once to push any lady off the penthouse roof for making eyes at her gran' McCann man, and no one slapped the butler down for spilling soup. Just refined."

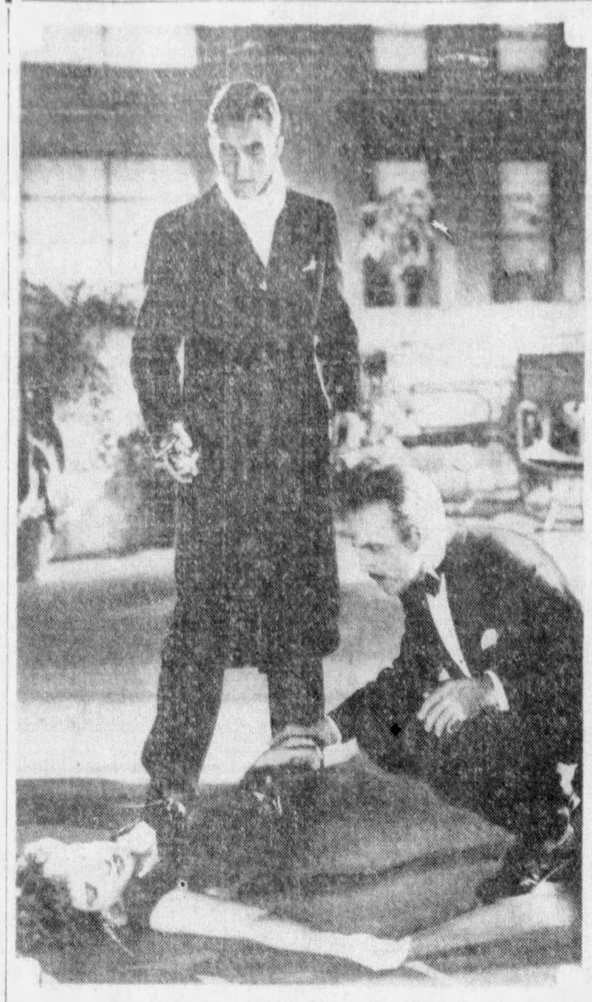
Durant made no attempt to quell Stevens' effort at humor. Indeed, he smiled appreciatively, although his fingers itched to grasp the officer and shake the story out of him.

"About midnight, in comes Tommy Siddall. The tale is that he had been drinking, but there were no signs of it when he was arrested. But shock and fright have been known to sober men before this. Of course you know that Siddall and Montagne were on the stove not so long ago?"

Engagement Known

Durant nodded. "I've heard about it."

"Well, it was a sizzler while it lasted. That Siddall boy spent his money on her, and did she take him? In a nice way, of course. Mimi was no burglar. She always left a man the price of a sandwich. At that, though, she must have been keen about young Siddall. An attractive lad, at that. Know him?"



A Scene from the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Photoplay "Penthouse"

Police Lieut. Brennan described the scene to Durant.

"I know him," said Durant.

The dryness of his tone made something click in Stevens' brain.

"Sure you do. You were engaged to his sweetie, Miss Sue Leonard, for a while, weren't you?"

"It was never announced," said Durant.

"Now, according to everybody there, Siddall was full of argument. He wanted his Mimi back, no two ways about it. Crelliman kidded him, rumored him, was as nice to him as an older brother. You can believe that or not, but four women and three men will swear to it on the stand. Crelliman had long ago forgiven Mimi for ditching him for the Siddall boy. As a matter of fact, Crelliman had aired Mimi before Siddall came into the picture. You'll get lots of testimony to substantiate that one, too. After Siddall and Mimi broke up, Jim Crelliman fell for Mimi again. You know, the romantic heart wanders and sometimes circles right back to where it started."

"You believe all this?" asked Durant.

"What difference does it make whether I believe it or not? Plenty of people will swear to it all.

"Siddall had a gun in his hand, a .38 revolver. One chamber was empty—I mean, it had been fired—and Montagne was killed with a bullet from a .38. Now listen to Siddall's story. It's a beaut."

"It will have to be good," said Durant.

The Junior Patrol Mail Box

We want leaders, fellows.

Every good captain is a good leader. Just like every good general is a good leader. The members of a club should all enjoy their meetings and outings because they like to have fun together with all the other members. And it is up to the captain, helped by his lieutenants, to make plans for the club's activities.

It's a good idea to give every member of your Patrol a job. For instance, you can appoint one of the members to write cheer-up cards if any of your members are ill; or you can have another one of the members responsible for keeping the clubroom clean and tidy. And another good job for one of the most energetic members is to be the "help-others-lieutenant." It would be his job, of course, to find ways the Patrol can help others and be kind to them.

Parties are nice, you bet, and we are always glad to hear that clubs are having a good time having parties, but there are some other things for a club to do which are lots of fun too. How about going to football games all together this fall—and having a yell all your own to encourage your home team? The captain or first lieutenant can be the cheer leader and you can practice your yell every day.

And how about a walking tour through the town? For instance, you could start early some day and walk clear to the Carnegie Museum in Oakland. Have you ever seen all the paintings there—and the many curious things they have in the great halls? And the cases full of animals looking just as if they were alive? That's where all the books are too, with a special room for kids. Every Sunday afternoon there is a free organ concert!

Ruth Jean Grine, of 1907 Sylvan avenue, Natrona Heights, Pa., wants an armband, but she sends no pledges for her 10 friends.

Capt. Altha Sullivan gets an armband. She lives at Lemont Furnace, Pa., which isn't a very big town, but they have a dandy club!

Miriam Adler, of Box 695 Holliday's Cove, W. Va., explains that she can't have a Junior Patrol club because there aren't enough children down there. Are you sure, Miriam? We have a good many members from Holliday's Cove.

Capt. Rita Netzel, of 402 Hancock street, has won a new armband.

And so has Capt. Catharine Jane Smith, of 601 Stewart avenue, Grove City, Pa.

Today we got a cartoon entitled "Comics on Parade," from Joe Mulvihill, Jr., of 136 Englewood Drive, Mt. Lebanon. Okay, Joe. Let's see some more of your work some time.

And we have another drawing from Norman Slemenda, of 2213 Pittview avenue, North Side. It shows Spike selling Sun-Telegraphs.

Another drawing we got the other day from Edward Duerling, of 2310 East Becket avenue, shows old Mr. Wimpy trying to "chisel" a hamburger from Snuggins—probably Snuggins would give it to him too, old Wimpy looks so hungry.

The long distance member today is Harry E. Weagraff, of 446 West Fourth street, Erie, Pa. Can you start a Patrol in Erie, Harry?

Altha Sesler, Jr., of R. F. D. No. 13, Box 148, Uniontown, Pa., sends in a dandy picture of Snuggins and Popeye. And it's beautifully colored, too. But that's why we can't put it in the paper. When you color your drawings, they won't reproduce—and we can't print them in the paper. Popeye is asking Snuggins: "Hey, Snuggins, why don't you eat lots of spinach instead of so many ice cream cones?" and Snuggins answers: "Cause I don't want the soda fountain man to go hungry.

That sure sounds like Snuggins, doesn't it?

IT LOOKED BAD FOR A WHILE

(Lamar, Mo., Democrat)

The Carthage golfers from the Broadview Country Club came to the Lamar course, Sunday afternoon, to meet the Lamar players. When the game was played around the course, the boys all sat down and began to figure. The Lamar boys figured themselves ahead. The visitors also figured themselves ahead. They all calculated several times, with varying results. Finally it was agreed that Capt. Dave Craig should be the official calculator and he said Lamar had 21½ points, while Carthage had 23½.

Drive Up and Join the Firm

New York firms of many partners are furnishing new work for musicians.

When Drisscrum, Palevinsky, Hassinger and O'Brien get together in business, the names must be synchronized and rendered palatable to the lisping public.

We do not know the name of the boy prodigy who orchestrated the gently flowing and classical Batten, Barton, Durstine and Osborne. The firm title rolls along like the motif in the Barcarolle from "Tales of Hoffman." It is so waltzy and toe-tingling that it could be played by a Viennese string band.

Park and Tilford, Abercrombie and Fitch, Hammacher, Schlemmer, and other firms have been famous for years. Each name is an institution and every syllable a cornerstone.

Advertising has made them venerable and established. But Batten, Barton, Durstine and Osborne head the sonorous list of musical nomenclature. For 10 years we thought the firm made cornets. Not until we met the affable Bruce Barton did we learn they were hardskulled businessmen. We still think they should make cornets.

You can switch the four names all around and they will always read in two-four time.

Let's see what strides we have made in legends in glass doors. Around 1900 we remember Skigg, Eggblotz and Shrank. There's a firm name that would make you flee to the hills in your old red flannel nightgown.

It is impossible to modulate the harshness of Skigg, Eggblotz and Shrank. They dealt in boilers and we are positive every one blew up. You had no trouble collecting from a jury when you sued Skigg, Eggblotz and Shrank. The combination of names sounded like collusion and tampering.

Ferd Pecora's firm is another long batting list with Pecora in the clean-up position. We understand there are 30 partners and that visitors to their big camp are announced by an Army bugler. In the old days they said an institution was the lengthened shadow of one man. But now they are shadow-boxing all along the line.

The story of the barefoot boy who made good in the city is no good if one of his 85 partners had boots.

Grave Charges

Candidate Mackrell's Fitness to Hold Public Office Is Brought Into Question.

Joseph Engelsberg, ex-racketeer, has made grave charges against Joseph N. Mackrell, the Progressive Republican candidate for Mayor, in letters made public by the Citizens' League, which is supporting P. J. McArdle, a rival candidate. Engelsberg declares Mackrell was his business partner in certain enterprises and promised to secure "police protection." Inasmuch as Mackrell has admitted having been associated with Engelsberg, his fitness to hold public office is brought into question.

It will not do for Mackrell to "pooh pooh" the charges and sneer that "any man who is fortunate enough to be sued by Engelsberg is the possessor of a wonderful certificate of character." The public will not be satisfied with anything less than a complete and satisfactory explanation of what his association with Engelsberg was. And if such an explanation can be given, it should be given at once.

If Engelsberg were a nonentity of whom few Pitts- burghers had ever heard, and there were nothing but his uncorroborated word to support the statement that he and Mackrell had business dealings, Mackrell's mere denial that there was anything improper in their relations might suffice. But Engelsberg has been a person of some importance in this community—of sufficient importance at any rate to have been chosen and to have served as Republican chairman in the Third Ward.

The Sun-Telegraph detests as heartily as anyone mudslinging based on mere surmise or suspicion. But when the personal integrity of a candidate for Mayor is assailed as Mackrell's is, and court proceedings are instituted, as in Engelsberg's suit against Mackrell, and citizens of the reputation of those constituting the executive committee of the Citizens' League are so impressed by the charges that they make them public, it becomes an inescapable duty to take cognizance of them.

Councilman W. Y. English has not added to his reputation for accuracy by his letter denying that John D. Houston demanded an open investigation by Council of the charges of irregularities in the management of the Department of Supplies during the Kline administration. Nor will the public find English's denial that he interfered with the proposed investigation very convincing. The record, as published in the Sun-Telegraph, speaks for itself.

The number of voters who enrolled for the pri- mary election on Thursday, the first registration day, is very encouraging. It falls little short of the number on the first registration day in the hot campaign of two years ago, and evidences a commendable interest in the election. There is reason to believe that the registration of independent voters—that is, voters who are not controlled by any organization or boss—was heavy.

It is worthy of note in this connection that the Democrats showed impressive gains in the wards not under control of the Republican organization. In the mayoralty campaign four years ago the Democratic registration was 5,210; last year it jumped to 20,107, and Roosevelt carried Pittsburgh by 26,000 majority; and all signs indicate that the Democrats will have a record-breaking enrollment this year.

On the first registration day in 1931 the number enrolled was 66,817, but in that election, according to the Allegheny County Bar Association's committee on election frauds, "thousands of persons registered on illegal assessments, registered from fictitious or non-existing addresses, and registered on forged tax receipts." Thanks to Leo Riordan, the county investigator, there has not been so much of that this year. The genuine registrations Thursday may accordingly exceed those of two years ago.

Indications are that Public Safety Director Har- mar D. Denny, Jr's., campaign against panhandling in the city streets amounted to little more than his statement at the announcement of the campaign that panhandling would have to stop. There has been no appreciable improvement in conditions. Director Denny, we are glad to note, promises to give the matter his attention.

Ben G. Graham, superintendent of the Pittsburgh public schools, calls attention to the fact that the NRA ban on child labor and the Pennsylvania child labor law are in conflict. The state law should be amended to conform to the national requirement, and it might well be done at the special session of the Legislature which Gov. Pinchot is thinking of calling in November.

At the same time the Legislature should ratify the child labor amendment to the United States Constitution. Pennsylvania has been woefully backward in social legislation in late years, and this reproach against the state should be removed. Members of the Legislature must have learned by now that their failure to enact desirable social legislation has engendered no little hostility.

The campign which the Better Traffic Committee and the Western Pennsylvania Safety Council are conducting to prevent traffic and industrial accidents is not to be regarded lightly because it is more or less of an old story. Safety education necessarily involves more or less repetition. Lessons have to be repeated over and over again before they make an impression on some people.

We welcome the news that the officials of a num- ber of neighboring counties and boroughs are joining with Pittsburgh in the three-month "Better Times Safety Drive." They are showing a splendid spirit of co-operation, and if this results in the saving of but a single life, the effort will have been well worth while.

The Sunday Sun-Telegraph will be more than usually attractive tomorrow. The March of Events section has been enlarged, and more space will be devoted to "City Life." The American Weekly, always replete with interesting material, will have several remarkable articles which Pittsburghers will wish to read.

One of the striking features of the American Weekly tomorrow will deal with a collision of a comet with the earth. The article tells of the evidence discovered by scientists, in the form of pits and scars over a vast area of several states, as seen from an airplane, and discusses the possibility that some such disastrous accident may cause the destruction of the world.

The Old New England Conscience

(Copyright, 1933.)

Of the five New England states four have voted decisively for repeal of the Eighteenth Amendment.

Rhode Island—one of the two states in the Union which never ratified the obnoxious amendment—led the way on May 3.

On June 13 Massachusetts fell into line, to be followed a week later by Connecticut and New Hampshire.

Last Tuesday saw Vermont—traditionally dry for generations—go two to one for immediate repeal, and now of the New England group only Maine is to be heard from.

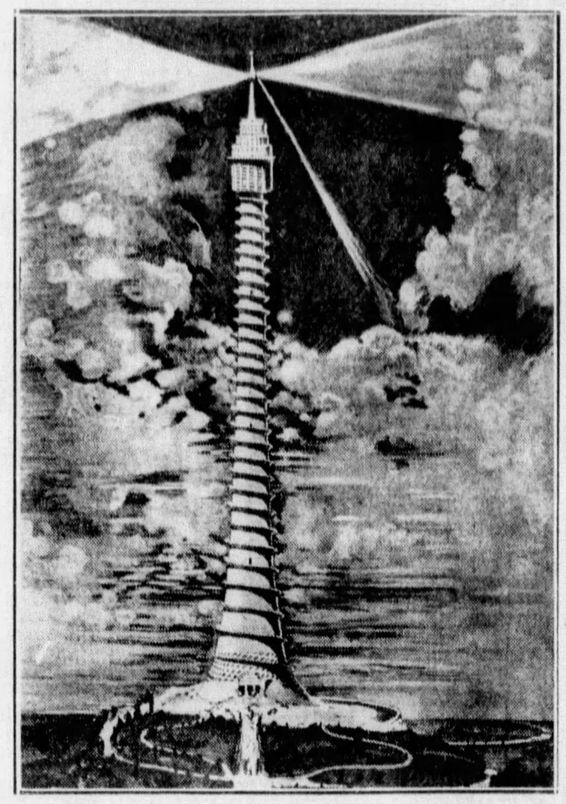
Next Monday Maine will go to the polls—and the nation will be surprised if Maine votes for national prohibition.

A clean sweep by the repeal movement in these five states can mean only that the old New England conscience still lives.

The law-abiding people of that region are determined that the gross evils of prohibition must go—and go quickly!

The Highest Yet

And Your Automobile May Climb It.



THIS BUILDING IS 2,300 FEET HIGH. YOU MAY SEE IT IN 1937 IN PARIS

It has been said in this column: What men can IMAGINE they can DO.

This picture, published in the Illustrated London News, shows a building to be erected at the Paris Exposition in 1937 and proves that men's imaginations are still at work. A gigantic tower, 2,300 feet high, almost twice as high as the Empire State Building in New York—now the tallest in the world—will be built of reinforced concrete, with a winding spiral automobile track on the outside. Visitors will climb to the top under the power of their own cars and come down again. Good brakes and good nerves, with no crowding, would be advisable.

Undoubtedly secure railings will be provided.

At the tip-top in the round ball there will be a meteorological cabin for the study of weather conditions. Below will be brilliant warning lights. The French propose to call this magnificent monument Le Phare du Monde—"The Lighthouse of the World."

The light will guide the next Lindbergh, flying across the ocean from America, or perhaps coming over from Asia, and help all aviators within 200 miles of the great French city.

Below the light will be a hotel of several stories, then just above the small round platform a big restaurant, and below, at the top of the spiral track, a garage for 400 cars.

Inside the tower will be elevators for foot traffic or those too nervous to drive up. It is expected that the tower, which involves simple building with pouring of concrete and sound engineering plans, will more than pay for itself.

Perhaps our Reconstruction Finance Corporation, which has invested in almost everything else, might like to build something like this, but twice as high. The Eiffel Tower, that still stands in Paris and was once by far the tallest structure on earth, will be dwarfed by this.

Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

The Sweet and Lowdown

Love and happiness, like a four-leaf clover, are always found by accident—never, when you are looking for them.

* * *

The honeymoon is not over until she stops saying, "I understand you, darling," and begins saying, "I see through you, old dear."

* * *

"Class" is what enables a woman to wear a ten-cent-store pearl necklace with such an air of distinction that even a gangster is tempted to hold her up and snatch it from her.

The late depression is rapidly passing; but these are still terrible days for the people who are looking for Easy Street, and have lost the way.

* * *

After a few years a man loves the sort of woman who is continually telling him what's good for him, almost as fervently as he loves spinach, carrots and his morning exercise.

* * *

A girl may sometimes feel conscience-stricken at tempting a defenseless man to kiss her—but not until after the last kiss.

* * *

Intuition is neither a strictly feminine nor a strictly masculine gift. But a woman's intuition gets so much more practice than a man's does, because no man ever TELLS her anything until he knows she's guessed it.

After a few years of the tormenting hazards of free-lancing in love, even the most independent girl will turn gratefully to the surety of marriage, and sign on the dotted line with a sigh of relief.

* * *

Chickens will always continue to cross the road; and men probably will always continue to jay-walk on the primrose path in the careless assurance that they can dodge fate or escape being run down by a woman at the last moment.

* * *

You can't sell a man a hat by telling him that it makes him look cute and boyish any more than you can sell a girl one by telling her that it makes her look dignified and sensible.

OUR RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis.

At Midnight

Have courage, soul!
When dawn returns
And the dark sea
With bright flame burns,
When rose and lily
(Now so dim)
Are filled with scarlet
To the brim,
You will be glad
And brave again,
Forgetting night's Forlorn refrain
With hope and joy
So brimming up.

Take courage, soul;
At midnight say:
"Dawn even now
Is on the way!"

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, Sept. 9.—From midnight until dawn I sat in the salon d'attente reserved for expectant fathers, in a New York maternity hospital. While I soaked up some of the tension of the new parent, who inhaled four packages of cigarets furiously, mostly my mind was far away.

Waiting in a crisis, thoughts scatter like bubbles in the wind. I thought how much an erect gentleman near the door, taut as a fiddle string, looked like Charles G. Norris and I thought how much my life would alter were I born again. One thing certain—I would prefer re-birth in a small town.

I would regret missing that period of sitting on the front porch in the hazy twilight of a summer evening. This phase of family communion is almost gone. How contagious the serenity of trees in sleepy whisper! A dreamy link with an alluring peace so Tennysonian.

What I have missed most in the city is the calm of dusk, the queer whorl of arabesques as night paints a black-out. Instead of the low cadence of crickets, the fierce huzzah of traffic. Instead of fireflies, the garish zig-zag of enormous electric beacons. I shall always miss the splendor of rural sunsets.

* * *

Somewhere I have read in a rich anthology of life that no one, living 20 years in a small town, is ever completely happy in a city. I lacked two years of 20 in the hills, but I subscribe to that. The same rule applies to the city bred who migrate to smaller communities. All of which doubtless counts for the sociological fact the most supremely happy people are those who live and die where born.

* * *

But about being born again. I'd like to be far handsomer. Somewhere midway between Jack Buchanon and Warren Williams would do. A pair of shoulders like Herb Roth's might help. They could leave me my ears. They are rather dandy. I would attend a fresh-water college. I've always had a leaning toward Wabash. Newspaper work would be my choice and the Kansas City Star my first hope.

* * *

Assuredly I would never use tobacco. Of all Life's naggers, Nicotine is the most relentless. I would not start girling until about 21. Then I would make it hum and marry, as I did, at 24. I'd learn one language other than my own perfectly. French perferably and Spanish second choice. From knee-high to a duck up to and including the doddering age I'd have dogs around. As one of life's indefatigable yessers I would learn to say "No" with the click of a roulette ball.

* * *

I'd like to have the same friends. Not one ever failed me. I've heard of double-crossing, but no one I catalogued as friend ever has. I run counter to ordinary existence consistently in but one way. I refuse to be an early bird. And that goes double were I born again. The rest of the world can have from 6 to 11 a. m. I'll take night—and a hamburger on rye! Fine music is one of the most magnificent of earth's generosities and I sincerely regret I did not acquire early love for it.

* * *

Among lesser accomplishments of life's monotonous tic-toc, I'd like to wear a hat like Clive Brook's, write of the trivial as engagingly as Robert Louis Stevenson, gurgle airy persiflage like Noel Coward, fill a room with electric excitement upon entering it in the manner of Floyd Gibbons, sport a breast pocket handkerchief like Aubrey Eads and be as boisterously breezy as Lee Tracy.

* * *

Dietetics, I believe, play important part in human tranquility. A light breakfast, no lunch and what Arnold Bennett calls a largish dinner is my idea. One sometimes has to live 40 years to become current to the glow of calling on the sick and encouraging the struggler up. And sometimes even longer to learn the poisonous futility of hate. Born again, I'd never contract a single debt. Not because of any particular conscience twinge. But because perpetual debt tears down something one can never build up.

* * *

At 5:30 a. m. a coolly competent nurse announced a 7-pound boy. Unconsciously during the racking wait, I was mapping out a life for him. In my zeal I had forgotten the simple rule that will make the lively newcomer happier than advice of all the sages. A trite little thing, it runs like this: "Mind your own business!"

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

Miss Cornelia Hill says I shouldn't have claimed that "American women have equal rights and opportunities with men"—and sends me some startling laws to prove I'm wrong.

I didn't say they had equal LEGAL rights, lady. But they do have equal HUMAN rights, if they want to use them. Meaning what? Meaning the right to stand on their own hind legs and raise Cain, if they don't like the breaks they're getting.

And I still maintain that most of the "injustice" which we women are suffering now, and have always suffered, is due not so much to masculine inhumanity, but to our own laziness, stupidity, frivolity, cowardice, general cussedness and conceit. And we could have had a better deal, any time, if we'd been willing to pay the price for it.

However, that doesn't mean that I approve of the conditions under which women are still forced to function, or am not doing my humble bit to better them. And, to prove it, I'm going to print part of the broadcast which the D. C. Federation of Women's Clubs has compiled, and which Mrs. Hill has forwarded to me.

"Do you know that in Oklahoma women are barred by law from holding any of the higher elective offices?

"Do you know that before Mrs. Ferguson was inducted into office as the first woman Governor of Texas, she petitioned the Court to set aside her 'legal disabilities as a married woman,' in order that contracts entered into by her on behalf of the State might not be questioned?

"DO YOU KNOW WHAT THE LEGAL PHASE 'DISABILITIES OF A MARRIED WOMAN' MEANS?

"That in many states it means married women, in the same way as criminals, children, and the insane, are limited in their to contract?

"That this classes large groups of women as legally and financially irresponsible, and handicaps them in the legitimate transaction of their property and business?

"DO YOU KNOW HOW MARRIED WOMEN'S PROPERTY RIGHTS ARE RESTRICTED?

"That in Florida the husband can manage and control his wife's separate property?

"That in Louisiana only the husband is privileged to manage and dispose of the husband's and wife's joint property?

"That in Michigan, though the wife paid for property held jointly by husband and wife, the husband has the sole right to the rents and profits?

"That in South Carolina even a woman's clothes are held to be the property of her husband?

"DO YOU KNOW THAT THE WIFE'S EARNINGS MAY BE THE HUSBAND'S PROPERTY?

"That in Georgia the records are full of cases where the husband has availed himself of his right to his wife's earnings?

"That in New York state the earnings of a wife secured from labor under her husband's roof from sewing, nursing or keeping boarders belong to her husband?

"DO YOU KNOW HOW INHERITANCE LAWS DISCRIMINATE AGAINST WOMEN?

"That in Arkansas the father inherits to the exclusion of the mother when their child dies without a will and leaves no descendants?

"That in the District of Columbia there are many discriminations against mothers, grandmothers, and other female relatives in the inheritance laws?

"DO YOU KNOW WE HAVE A LEGAL DOUBLE STANDARD OF MORALS?

"That according to the United States Interdepartmental Social Hygiene Board more than 33 states define prostitution as an 'act' of the female'?

"That in many states, as Michigan and New York, women are punished, while the men participants go free?

"That in Texas a husband may divorce his wife for a single act of infidelity, but a wife can not divorce her husband unless he has abandoned her and is living in a state of infidelity?

"DO YOU KNOW HOW INSECURE ARE THE RIGHTS OF MOTHERS TO THEIR CHILDREN?

"That the father is sole natural guardian of minor children in Alabama, Arizona and Texas? That in Georgia it is legally possible for a father to will away the custody of his children from the mother?

"That Michigan, New York and Massachusetts are among the states where the father alone is entitled to the services and earnings of the children?

"DO YOU KNOW THAT THE BURDEN OF ILLEGITIMATE PARENTHOOD RESTS ON THE MOTHER?

"That in some states, as Virginia and Texas, there are no laws by which the unmarried mother may demand aid from the father for support of the child?

"DO YOU KNOW THAT IN MORE THAN HALF THE STATES WOMEN ARE DENIED THE RIGHT TO SERVE ON JURIES?

"DO YOU KNOW THAT THERE IS NOT A SINGLE STATE IN THE UNION WHERE MEN AND WOMEN LIVE UNDER EQUAL PROTECTION OF THE LAW?"

And you haven't heard the half! So now YOU think—what?

ONCE OVERS

By J. J. Mundy

If you cannot control yourself, you cannot expect to control others.

You may create scenes and otherwise carry on with a high hand to get what you want, but what you gain will be little in the end.

That sort of tactics creates antagonism and is selfish.

Who are you that you should have what you want rather than the other fellow?

And how your children will take it out on you some day in return for the exhibitions you make of high temper before them!

Children are even more observant than older people.

What they do is more or less a reflection of what they see.

If you have little regard for truth, you must expect untruthful children and could anything be worse as a life companion?

To carry forward your own plans and be obliged to resort to deceit or subterfuge to gain your end is just as quickly grasped by the children as others.

Tempestuous scenes are merely lack of self control.

You do not command respect—perhaps you don't want that so much as to have others fear your tantrums.

For shame on such an attitude when kind understanding would work better.

And your self-respect will be much greater.

Text for Today The Lord hath appeared of old unto me, saying, Yea, I have loved thee with an everlasting love: therefore with loving-kindness have I drawn thee.—Jeremiah, xxxi:3.

(Today's text is suggested by the Rev. G. Lawrence Himmelman, pastor, Emanuel's Lutheran Church, Bellevue.)
